American Sources Believe Cabinet Shakeup Had Hidden Motive

NO VALUE TO GERMANY

Unconditional Surrender Only Terms Offered By Allies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Latest diplomatic advices reaching Washington concerning the situation in Italy today led authoritative sources to believe that Premier Benito Mussolini wants to get his unhappy country out of the war, and is trying to find some way to do so.

That is the interpretation which informed American sources are now placing on Mussolini's action in appointing his son-in-law and former Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, as envoy to the Vatican, and in sending Augusto Rosso as ambassador to Turkey. Rosso was Italian ambassador to the United States during 1933-36, and is married to an American woman.

Known As Moderate

Both Ciano and Rosso have been known as moderates in respect to their enthusiasm for Italy's alliance with Germany and Japan. Ciano was reported to have opposed Italy's entry into the war at the beginning.

By placing these so-called moderates in positions where they will be accessible to the outside world, it is thought that Mussolini may feel they will provide a logical avenue through which peace feelers could be made when the moment is opportune.

The view has long prevailed in diplomatic circles that the Vatican eventually will play an important

Promises Of Economy Forgotten

House Committee Labors Twice And Brings Forth .00416 Percent Saving

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The wide-spread heralding of "economy" which ushered in the 78th congress appeared today to have diminished to the proportions of a thoroughly-spent echo.

The all-powerful House Appropriations Committee has twice labored and, on the basis of the most charitable estimates, has brought forth a "cut in the cost of government" in some twenty departments, bureaus and commissions reaching the grand total of approximately .00416 percent.

Here is the record chalked up during the first month of the new congress:

Last week, the committee, which must initiate all money bills, reported its first major measure—the annual supply bill for the treasury and post office departments. Of the $1,212,000,000 requested by these two departments, the committee allowed an overall total of $1,202,000,000—A cut of $10,000,000, or approximately .008 percent.

This week, the committee reported its second major bill—The annual supply measure for the so-called 17 independent establishments such as the Maritime Commission, the budget bureau, etc. Of $2,627,000,000 requested by these agencies, the committee allowed $2,621,000,000—a cut of $6,000,000, or approximately .002 percent.

Of the grand total of $3,839,000,000 sought in the two bills, the committee allowed $3,823,000,000—an overall cut of $16,000,000 or .00416 percent.

In the bill for the independent establishments, the committee, employing President Roosevelt's system of having two budgets for each agency—one a "war-time" budget, the other for "normal" expenditures—asserted that 87.7 percent of the funds in that supply measure were for war-time purposes.

It made no estimate of the war-time and normal proportions of the treasury-post office measure however, but did point out that the treasury "is feeling impetus caused by the heavy expenditures for the army, navy and other agencies contributing to the war effort."

So far the house has acted on only one of these bills—the one for the treasury and post office departments. Although the house (Continued on Page Two)

DRAFTED WAR WORKERS NEED NOT JOIN UNION

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—Drafted war workers or those who volunteer will not be compelled to join unions if the pending draft-industry legislation is passed, Ernest L. Bell, Sr., of Keane, N. Y., asserted today.

Bell, who is executive secretary of the citizens' committee for a national war service act said he had received assurances from Sen. Warren R. Austin (R) Vermont and Rep. James W. Wadsworth (R) New York, that an amendment containing this provision would be added to bills now pending in both houses.

"I received a telegram signed by Senator Austin and Representative Wadsworth saying that they would sponsor the amendment to the bill," Bell disclosed adding that the message included text of the amendment as follows:

"Provided further, that every person assigned to serve under this act, including every accepted volunteer, shall have the right to join any union or organization of employees, but no such person shall be obliged to join any such union or organization if he or she should not freely choose to do so."

Lacking the non-union clause, the proposed draft labor legislation has been widely criticised. Bell indicated he felt confident there would be no objection in either house or senate to inclusion of the amendment.

EGG SHORTAGE IRKS HUN; NORSE KILLS SABOTEURS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—A flock of Norwegian hens who refused to lay as many eggs as Nazi authorities demanded have been executed, but the executioner has been jailed.

The details, broadcast by the British radio, were reported today by CBS.

A Norwegian poultry farmer received a curt note from the local Nazi food controller reminding him that he had not been delivering his quota of eggs. He replied: "I pinned your notice in my hen house, but in spite of that the hens have refused to lay. I have therefore shot them for sabotage."

The district gauleiter was not amused so the farmer was sent to jail.

HALF MILLION NAZIS KILLED AT STALINGRAD

LONDON, Feb. 10—The Germans lost 500,000 troops killed or captured in their futile attempt to take Stalingrad, Lieut. Gen. Vasily Chuikov, commander of the 62nd Russian army, was quoted as stating in an interview reported today by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

"Extremely bitter fighting raged inside the city's houses," Lieut. Gen. Chuikov said. "Every room, staircase, attic and cellar was contested."

"Up to December 25 the Luftwaffe dropped nearly 1,000,000 bombs on Stalingrad. The vibrations broke drinking glasses in my dugout into a thousand pieces."

"For many days one could not see more than five yards because of the smoke and dust of battle."

GERMANS FORTIFYING BULGARIAN COASTLINE

LONDON, Feb. 10—The Germans are building fortifications along the Bulgarian coast, especially at Varna and Burgas, in fear of Russian landings, it was reported today in a Reuter dispatch from Ankara.

VOTE TO DECIDE FATE OF DIES

Congress Expected To Keep Its "Gun Behind The Door"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The old sauerkraut barrel is coming back to the corner grocery store.

With canned sauerkraut for civilians taboo, the agriculture department today said that "relatively large supplies of sauerkraut are available to consumers this year, but in bulk form, the old-fashioned kraut barrel."

Kraut production in 1942 increased 7,000 tons over the 1931-40 average of 152,000 tons. However, the armed forces took 44,000 tons in cans.

Under lend-lease, 35,122 pounds of sauerkraut has been shipped abroad, but some of this was canned in 1941.

The house today votes on an unprecedented two-year continuation of the Dies Committee, with the sponsor of its new lease on life predicting approval because congress "wants a gun behind the door."

Rep. Cox (D) Ga., whose resolution would extend the committee set up in 1935 to investigate un-American activities, said he was certain of more than 300 house votes for his measure.

"The house is going to pass this resolution because it wants a gun behind the door," Cox, a member of the committee, declared. "The house is convinced it has to police these agencies."

Never before in its controversy-provoking history has the committee headed by Rep. Martin Dies (D) Texas, sought an extension of its work of investigating allegedly subversive activities since 1938 on (Continued on Page Two)

JAPS CONFESS AIR WEAKNESS

General Sato Tells Diet How U. S. Gained Mastery At Guadalcanal

TOKYO, Feb. 10—(By Official Japanese Wireless)—Frank admission that Japan was defeated at Guadalcanal because of her inability to gain aerial supremacy over the island was made to the Japanese parliament today by Major General Sato, representative of the war ministry.

Discussing the evacuation of Japanese forces from Guadalcanal and the Buna area of New Guinea, Sato stressed the fact that Japanese air bases were more than 600 miles from the scene of action "while the enemy was able to obtain both material and labor power from supply bases situated near at hand."

"For this reason," Sato said, "it proved impossible for the Japanese to gain supremacy in the air over Guadalcanal."

Sato insisted that the evacuations were of "no particular importance" so far as the general war situation is concerned. At the conclusion of his lengthy report, members of the Diet rose from their seats and stood in tribute to the memory of thousands of Japanese troops killed at Guadalcanal and in New Guinea.

KID CRIMINAL DRAWS SENTENCE AS "HABITUAL"

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—At the age of only 16, Robert Madden today achieved the dubious distinction of being a habitual criminal.

For his fourth burglary, he was sentenced under the habitual criminal act to 10 years in state prison and Judge John A. Sbarbaro revoked the probation Madden had been granted after serving six months in county jail for the three earlier burglaries.

He was sentenced to one year to life for each of these.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

"There is nothing in our handbook to indicate what happens to the union shop or closed shop when we start shifting men in and into war industries."

"How will the national labor relations board which now polices union shop contracts, and the unions which drew them, handle the situation?"

We shot that arrow into the air on March 21, 1942 and in February 1943 it is still circling Washington.

We have had 11 calendar months pass since the labor draft was first proposed and neither administration, congress nor unions have come up with any suggestion of policy.

Now we have a many thousand word bill in congress which would accomplish the labor draft and not one word of it has any bearing on what probably will be the most important and most discussed phase—the union question.

"Is this oversight or evasion?" he asked with a merry twinkle in his eye.

This is the congress which has talked about its independence. Well it had better get busy fixing that bill one way or the other because somebody is going to have to make the decision.

Thought for the day: First things last.

WMC MOVES TO SHIFT INDUSTRY TO 48 HOUR WEEK

Sweeping Executive Order Immediately Affects 32 Shortage Areas

SIX WEEKS FOR TASK

President's Edict Amounts To 30 Percent Wage Boost For Workers

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The 48 hour week order is all inclusive and makes no exceptions for any workers in the 32 labor shortage areas where it applies, the War Manpower Commission explained today.

The announcement came from Fowler V. Harper, deputy commissioner.

"It affects retail establishments, the press, radio, transportation, personal services and every other known type of employment," Harper said.

"The order may be extended where, and as it is required, in the future and probably will have the same broad application in these other areas."

WINCHELL AND PEARSON GET RADIO WARNING

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—Mark Woods, president of the Blue network, subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, has issued instructions curbing extemporaneous remarks of two news commentators broadcasting regularly over that network.

The commentators receiving notes, it was learned today, were Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson.

Admitting that certain restrictions were being enforced, but not naming either of the commentators, Wood said the action had been prompted because "several commentators have recently departed from prepared scripts to discuss controversial issues in a biased and inflammatory manner."

Specifically stated in the memorandum dispatched by the radio chain were instructions not to make "derogatory or insulting remarks" about any member of congress "or any other person holding public office."

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 10—Does a one-legged man have to give up a whole rationing coupon to buy one shoe?

A perplexed Lowell rationing board turned today to Washington for the answer after a one-legged man asked for a ruling.

1942 VICTORIES OF HUNS OFFSET

Summer And Fall Drives Engineered By Hitler Go Into Reverse

MOSCOW, Feb. 10—Recapture by the Red army of the city of Kursk and other strong points on the southern front today brought to practically naught the results of successive German offensives last Summer and Autumn.

Not only has the current Soviet drive practically reestablished along the entire front the status quo existing at the beginning of last Summer but it also has begun to liberate cities and territories seized by the Germans a year and a half ago.

Kursk, held by the Nazis since the fall of 1941, Belgorod and the rail junction of Kramatorsk are among the principal German bases seized along the crumbling Winter defense line, and leads the Red army into the heart of the Donetz basin.

Troops under the command of Major General Ivan Cheriakhovskiy were awarded the Suvorov Star of the first degree—the highest military decoration—for their brilliant swift capture of Kursk. They fought obstinately day and night while the enemy offered fierce resistance from well fortified positions.

The Germans had prepared themselves for a long resistance in Kursk and its environs. All roads leading to the city were mined and (Continued on Page Two)

SENATE VOTES BOOK-LENGTH NAME FOR 23

Scioto Trail, running north and south through Circleville, was a step nearer having its name changed Wednesday after the Ohio senate approved 32 to 0 a bill presented by Senator Liggitt, of Belle Center, which would name the route the "United Spanish War Veterans' Memorial highway."

The measure has now been sent to the house for concurrence.

Several Circleville and Pickaway county civic and historical organizations have adopted resolutions opposing the name change, among them being Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution and Circleville Chamber of Commerce.

Resolutions opposing the change were sent to Senators Everett Addison and Roscoe Walcott and to Representative Herbert E. Louis.

RUSSIANS PLUNGE AHEAD

Nazi Nervousness Betrayed By Strengthening Of Black Sea Ports

BULLETIN

LONDON, Feb. 10—The 612th air raid alert of the war sounded in London late this afternoon.

By International News Service

Crushing of all organized Japanese resistance on Guadalcanal today foreshadowed early American sweeps against other enemy bases in that area, especially Jap strongholds on New Georgia and Kolombangara islands in the central Solomons.

Culmination of the six months old Guadalcanal land campaign came in a dramatic announcement by Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, U. S. commander, that full control had been taken by his troops.

The statement came less than 24 hours after Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed that Jap resistance on the embattled island had ceased and that the enemy was evacuating. Later information said that high ranking Jap officers escaped the American trap.

The ground campaign on the island ended when the American troops under Patch completed a brilliant pincer operation against Cape Esperance, last important enemy stronghold on the northwest tip of Guadalcanal.

U. S. Eyes Munda

While the Japs may be planning new blows against American bases in the South and Southwest Pacific, navy men pointed out that U. S. air and sea forces now undoubtedly will move quickly to neutralize, wipe out, or capture the new enemy airfield at Munda, only 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

This was first indicated by Knox when he stated that the capture of Guadalcanal and elimination of Japanese resistance there provided the American forces with a strong base from which to strike at more important Japanese strongholds to the north and west of this important Solomon island.

HALF MILLION NAZIS KILLED AT STALINGRAD

LONDON, Feb. 10—The Germans lost 500,000 troops killed or captured in their futile attempt to take Stalingrad, Lieut. Gen. Vasily Chuikov, commander of the 62nd Russian army, was quoted as stating in an interview reported today by the Exchange Telegraph Company.

"Extremely bitter fighting raged inside the city's houses," Lieut. Gen. Chuikov said. "Every room, staircase, attic and cellar was contested."

"Up to December 25 the Luftwaffe dropped nearly 1,000,000 bombs on Stalingrad. The vibrations broke drinking glasses in my dugout into a thousand pieces."

"For many days one could not see more than five yards because of the smoke and dust of battle."

General Sato Tells Diet How U. S. Gained Mastery At Guadalcanal

TOKYO, Feb. 10—(By Official Japanese. Wireless)—Frank admission that Japan was defeated at Guadalcanal because of her inability to gain aerial supremacy over the island was made to the Japanese parliament today by Matsuo General Sato, representative of the war ministry.

Discussing the evacuation of Japanese forces from Guadalcanal and the Buna area of New Guinea, Sato stressed the fact that Japanese air bases were more than 600 miles from the scene of action "while the enemy was able to obtain both material and labor power from supply bases situated near at hand."

"For this reason," Sato said, "it proved impossible for the Japanese to gain supremacy in the air over Guadalcanal."

Sato insisted that the evacuations were of "no particular importance" so far as the general war situation is concerned. At the conclusion of his lengthy report, members of the Diet rose from their seats and stood in tribute to the memory of thousands of Japanese troops killed at Guadalcanal and in New Guinea.

KID CRIMINAL DRAWS SENTENCE AS "HABITUAL"

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—At the age of only 16, Robert Madden today achieved the dubious distinction of being a habitual criminal.

For his fourth burglary, he was sentenced under the habitual criminal act to 10 years in state prison and Judge John A. Sbarbaro revoked the probation Madden had been granted after serving six months in county jail for the three earlier burglaries.

He was sentenced to one year to life for each of these.

President's Edict Amounts To 30 Percent Wage Boost For Workers

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The 48 hour week order is all inclusive and makes no exceptions for any workers in the 32 labor shortage areas where it applies, the War Manpower Commission explained today.

The announcement came from Fowler V. Harper, deputy commissioner.

"It affects retail establishments, the press, radio, transportation, personal services and every other known type of employment," Harper said.

"The order may be extended where, and as it is required, in the future and probably will have the same broad application in these other areas."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—The War Manpower Commission moved rapidly today to accomplish in six short weeks the Herculean task of shifting American business from the 40 to the 48 hour week, called for by President Roosevelt in one of the most sweeping executive orders of the war.

Announcing that the program would be well under way in the 32 critical manpower shortage areas by March 31, the WMC forecast that other areas would be added and warned that violations among non-war industries would be turned over to the justice department "for appropriate actions."

These decisions were made public swiftly on the heels of White House release of the order which carried with it the firm policy rule that the extra eight hours worked should be paid for on a regular overtime basis—generally time and a half.

The President's order would amount to a 30 percent raise in actual pay to be received by per-

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

"There is nothing in our handbook to indicate what happens to the union shop or closed shop when we start shifting men in and into war industries."

"How will the national labor relations board which now polices union shop contracts, and the unions which drew them, handle the situation?"

We shot that arrow into the air on March 21, 1942 and in February 1943 it is still circling Washington.

We have had 11 calendar months pass since the labor draft was first proposed and neither administration, congress nor unions have come up with any suggestion of policy.

Now we have a many thousand word bill in congress which would accomplish the labor draft and not one word of it has any bearing on what probably will be the most important and most discussed phase—the union question.

"Is this oversight or evasion?" he asked with a merry twinkle in his eye.

This is the congress which has talked about its independence. Well it had better get busy fixing that bill one way or the other because somebody is going to have to make the decision.

Thought for the day: First things last.

Summer And Fall Drives Engineered By Hitler Go Into Reverse

MOSCOW, Feb. 10—Recapture by the Red army of the city of Kursk and other strong points on the southern front today brought to practically naught the results of successive German offensives last Summer and Autumn.

Not only has the current Soviet drive practically reestablished along the entire front the status quo existing at the beginning of last Summer but it also has begun to liberate cities and territories seized by the Germans a year and a half ago.

Kursk, held by the Nazis since the fall of 1941, Belgorod and the rail junction of Kramatorsk are among the principal German bases seized along the crumbling Winter defense line, and leads the Red army into the heart of the Donetz basin.

Troops under the command of Major General Ivan Cherniakhovsky were awarded the Suvorov Star of the first degree—the highest military decoration—for their brilliant swift capture of Kursk. They fought obstinately day and night while the enemy offered fierce resistance from well fortified positions.

The Germans had prepared themselves for a long resistance in Kursk and its environs. All roads leading to the city were mined and

LONDON, Feb. 10—The 612th air raid alert of the war sounded in London late this afternoon.

Crushing of all organized Japanese resistance on Guadalcanal today foreshadowed early American sweeps against other enemy bases in that area, especially Jap strongholds on New Georgia and Kolombangara islands in the central Solomons.

Culmination of the six months old Guadalcanal land campaign came in a dramatic announcement by Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, U. S. commander, that full control had been taken by his troops.

The statement came less than 24 hours after Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed that Jap resistance on the embattled island had ceased and that the enemy was evacuating. Later information said that high ranking Jap officers escaped the American trap.

The ground campaign on the island ended when the American troops under Patch completed a brilliant pincers operation against Cape Esperance, last important enemy stronghold on the northwest tip of Guadalcanal.

U. S. Eyes Munda

While the Japs may be planning new blows against American bases in the South and Southwest Pacific, navy men pointed out that U. S. air and sea forces now undoubtedly will move quickly to neutralize, wipe out, or capture the new enemy airfield at Munda, only 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

This was first indicated by Knox when he stated that the capture of Guadalcanal and elimination of Japanese resistance there provided the American forces with a strong base from which to strike at more important Japanese strongholds to the north and west of this important Solomon island.

WINCHELL AND PEARSON GET RADIO WARNING

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—Mark Woods, president of the Blue network, subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, has issued instructions curbing extemporaneous remarks of two news commentators broadcasting regularly over that network.

The commentators receiving notes, it was learned today, were Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson.

Admitting that certain restrictions were being enforced, but not naming either of the commentators, Wood said the action had been prompted because "several commentators have recently departed from prepared scripts to discuss controversial issues in a biased and inflammatory manner."

Specifically stated in the memorandum dispatched by the radio chain were instructions not to make "derogatory or insulting remarks" about any member of congress "or any other person holding public office."

sons now working a five-day, 40-hour week.

In a lengthy press conference explanation of how the order would be applied, Deputy WMC Director Fowler Harper gave complete assurance that workers released from the jobs by the manpower saving would find quick, similar employment.

"You bet your life we'll be able to place them," Fowler replied, when asked if there would be enough jobs for released workers in manpower shortage areas. "We want to avoid the confusion of having hundreds of thousands of workers thinking they are going to lose their jobs. The whole idea of this is to make more manpower available."

Byrnes Gives Views

Meanwhile Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes commented on the new, lengthened work-week with the admission that the overtime pay requirement would increase the nation's wage bill. He added, however, that "the addition will be largely made up by the increased production secured."

Byrnes speech was designed primarily to inform the public of the government's intent to hold firm on the anti-inflation front by continuing to deny wage increases beyond the WLE's 15 percent "little steel" formula and adhering, as far as practicable, to present price ceilings.

Digressing from this main theme, Byrnes made what was the first official government statement on European invasion plans apparently decided by President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill at their recent conference at Casablanca.

Referring to "our war plans for 1943," Byrnes declared that "they contemplate, within a measurable period of time, the invasion of Europe, one of the greatest military operations ever planned in history—a military campaign, which no matter how successfully and brilliantly executed, will involve casualties such as this nation has never before endured."

Many On Long Week

Byrnes pointed out that "many war industries are already working 48 hours or more a week, but the order will compel other industries to go on a minimum 48 hour week wherever feasible. The general adoption of the 48 hour week will enable us to get more work out of our limited labor supply. . . . We shall thereby release manpower for the armed forces, for war industries and for the farms."

The commission's program was summed up in this manner:

1. Employers in 32 critical labor shortage areas will be told not to release any workers between now and March 31, and to stop all recruitment and "indiscriminate hiring at the gate."

2. After March 31, employers will be required to tell the WMC how near they are to the lengthened work week, and if it has not been reached by that time, they will be asked to prepare schedules immediately to set their plants on the required work basis.

3. From these schedules the WMC will determine what plants are going to release employees, and how many workers will be free. Then the commission will place them in the labor shortage areas.

4. A procedure will be set up under which an employer will be able to appeal for an exception to the 48-hour week where lack of materials, defective production plans or certain other factors, make full schedules impossible.

5. Cases of non-compliance with the order among the non-war industries will be turned over to the attorney general for appropriate action.

Byrnes, in his radio address declared that pending war plans will require the home front to "adopt for the duration a spartan standard of living and to take patriotic pride in it."

Jack-of-All-Trades, Helicopter Seen By Some as Post-War Flying Flivver

Vought-Sikorsky XR-4 helicopter

By ESTHER VAN WAGONER TUFTY

Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Quietly, the helicopter . . . oft-called the "flying flivver" . . . is being seriously talked about here by aviation big-wigs as a boon to post-war transportation. Few know it, but Igor Sikorsky, the designer and guiding force, comes frequently to Washington for conferences.

In its cheapness, flexibility of movement and ability to land anywhere (apparently anywhere but atop a tree), the helicopter promises to remove the traffic bottleneck in congested metropolitan areas. This said it will revolutionize the travel habits of the average man as much as the Model T Ford did 43 years ago.

Home-to-Mother Quick

So, in the days to come, Mr. John Citizen may open his garage door in the morning, roll out his private helicopter and arrive at his office in six or seven minutes! Mrs. John Citizen, in an air jitney, may go home to mother before she has changed her mind.

The helicopter is priced right for the average family's pocketbook. Costing no more than a medium-priced car, it can do things no circus flivver could ever do! It's easier to fly than the old family Ford . . . and easier to keep operating. Even Sister Susie, who never did have any mechanical sense, can be trusted with its simple mechanism.

1942 VICTORIES OF HUNS OFFSET Promises Of Economy Forgotten

The battlefield was shot through with numerous pillboxes and machine-gun nests.

The city not only was protected by a big garrison but the Germans also concentrated near Kursk considerable other forces because it held great significance for them both as a large city and an important rail junction on the route to the steel city of Kharkov and Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

When Kursk was surrounded and the Red army broke through from several directions the Germans threw into battle all available reserves, including wounded troops taken from hospitals. When all German counter-attacks failed a large-scale withdrawal was started. Heavily loaded trucks moved to the railroad station which is several miles from the city.

The rail line, however, already had been cut an dthen the Nazis were unpleasantly surprised to find the only highway from Kursk to Orel was cut at Fatezh to the north.

Kursk was completely in the hands of the Soviets by 3 p. m. Monday when the Red army cleared the Nazis from Proletarsky Square, in the center of the city.

ISLAND VICTORY PAVES WAY FOR YANKEE ACTION

Munda Seen As Next Target For American Air And Sea Forces

Japanese troops caught in the final trap were lacking, it was believed that between 2,500 and 3,500 Japs were involved.

It was a bitter defeat for the Nipponese who landed on the island last Summer and constructed an airfield from which they planned assaults on Allied shipping lanes to Australia, and on American bases in the New Hebrides, New Caledonia and the Fiji islands.

Costly Defeat

It was also a costly defeat. During the landing of American marines, and in the subsequent fruitless efforts to recapture Guadalcanal and strategic Henderson field the Japanese lost at least 30,000 men, 1,100 planes and 72 warships, transports and supply vessels.

While the marines made the first landings and put the situation well in hand, the army finished the job. Marines were evacuated from Guadalcanal for a well-earned rest several weeks ago and doughboys under command of Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch took over.

The Japanese evacuation had been under way for some time. Senior officers were among the first to go — some by submarine and others by small surface ships which slipped inshore in darkness.

Tokyo's announcement of the Guadalcanal defeat grossly understated Japanese losses, claiming that casualties in the Solomons and New Guinea campaigns were 16,734, and aircraft losses were 139.

New Defeat Looms

Another Japanese defeat was in the making in New Guinea as Allied jungle fighters in the Wau-Mubo district south of Lae drew closer to the enemy base which is the next objective in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's campaign. More than 100 Japanese dead were counted following the latest battle.

Allied bombers pounded Lae from the air and also raided Kendari in the Celebes.

Russian heavy artillery, moved up from Stalingrad, blasted German positions in Rostov as Soviet armies closed in on the Caucasus gateway. Stiffened German resistance slowed but could not halt Red army advances.

The Russians plunged ahead on the whole 500-mile front from Orel to Novorossiysk threatening the key defense points of Kharkov and Stalingrad by breaching the enemy line at Kursk and Belgorod.

Lieut. Gen. Vasily Chuikov, whose army forced the axis to capitulate at Stalingrad, said the enemy lost 500,000 men in killed and captured in that ill-fated campaign.

Moscow Confident

Promise of future heavier blows at the retreating enemy was contained in a Moscow dispatch to Reuters which said a fresh army of 1,500,000 ski troops was ready to take the field.

German nervousness was betrayed by reports that the Bulgarian Black Sea coast is being hurriedly fortified against possible attack. Berlin also announced that civilians at Brest and other French coastal towns will be evacuated because of continuing Allied air raids.

Another Berlin report said the RAF was over western Germany during the night, but gave no details. Up to an early hour this morning the air ministry did not confirm this report.

In North Africa the French repulsed a German tank assault, but elsewhere action was on a light scale. RAF and American aircraft kept up their attacks on the Tunisian coastal area held by the axis.

Action flared again on the border of China's Yunnan Province adjoining Burma as the Japanese made a major effort to breach Chinese lines. The attack failed and the Japanese lost 1,000 men.

COUNTRY CLUB SETS PLANS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Plans for modified operation of Pickaway Country club during the 1943 season were outlined Wednesday by Tom O. Gilliland, club president, following a meeting of club trustees.

Mr. Gilliland said the club will open May 1 and, following a strict budget set up by him and the trustees, will continue to operate through the Summer barring any unforeseen developments.

Plans now are to center all club activity at the Nineteenth Hole, caddy house equipment being removed there, lockers for golfers being made available in the locker room of the club house. Course management will be in charge of a person yet unnamed. The designated employee will also handle Nineteenth Hole activities, caddies, club house and all other facilities of the club. The house committee, headed by Dr. G. D. Phillips, is seeking a married couple to reside in the club house during the Summer.

Harry W. Heffner was named chairman of a membership-finance committee, this committee to go to work immediately to line up members for the season. Charles T. Gilmore was named chairman of the greens committee, and Tom Brunner of the tennis committee.

Trustees approved appointment of Elmon E. Richards, Harold Limbach, Harold O. Grant and Norbert Cochran as members of the board, representing non-stockholders. Appointment of advisory trustees was approved at the annual stockholders' meeting.

The club officers have not yet worked out a program for keeping the greens and golf course in proper condition.

Trustees met in offices of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company.

CIANO MAY BE POINTED TOWARD MOVE FOR PEACE

American Sources Believe Cabinet Shakeup Had Hidden Motive

role in the final peace settlement, especially in Europe, and it is believed that Mussolini is preparing to take advantage of that possibility.

Italy In Jam

American officials are inclined to view Italy now as being in much the same position as Finland, eager to get out of the war, but unable to do so because of the German hold on the country.

However, the comparison between Italy and Finland ends there, because the sympathy which the American government still feels for the Finnish people does not apply to Italy.

The view prevails in American quarters that Italy is now more of a liability than an asset to Germany, and for that reason, if for no other, there is no disposition to consider anything short of unconditional surrender from that country.

Thus, officials say Mussolini is going to be badly disappointed if he harbors the hope that the United States will deal with Ciano or Russo.

U. S. To Be Aloof

In the first place, the American government has no use for either one of those gentlemen. The state department considers Ciano an unscrupulous grafter and political racketeer. Roscoe is not regarded as any friend of this country.

Officials recall that on one occasion in November, 1935, Russo received a verbal lashing from Secretary of State Cordell Hull when he protested as an "unfriendly act" the American government's appeal to manufacturers not to sell war supplies to Italy or Ethiopia during the Italian invasion of that African kingdom.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 10—On his admission he supplied the guns used by seven members of the Roger Touhy gang in making their escape from Stateville penitentiary October 9, Casimir Dolak, brother of one of the gangsters, faced a possible 100 prison term today.

Dolak confessed his part in the escape to State's Attorney James E. Burke of Will county yesterday, and a new indictment will be sought naming him in the charge.

Two of the fugitives were slain by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents when the gang was rounded up in Chicago.

Touhy, Basil Banghart, William Stewart and Matthew Nelson have been indicted for helping Edward Darlak escape. All face a sentence of 199 years in addition to the other terms they were serving at the time of their escape.

Casimir Darlak was arrested 10 days ago in the east and was brought back to Joliet.

"I took two pistols to Stateville penitentiary one night last August," he told Burke. "I had made arrangement to meet a man, Percy Campbell, a Negro trusty, who would get the pistols into the prison."

"I got the pistols, which were taped together, and threw them back of a hedge fence where Campbell picked them up later."

Campbell escaped later and still is at large.

Byrnes speech was designed primarily to inform the public of the government's intent to hold firm on the anti-inflation front by continuing to deny wage increases beyond the WLE's 15 percent "little steel" formula and adhering, as far as practicable, to present price ceilings.

Digressing from this main theme, Byrnes made what was the first official government statement on European invasion plans apparently decided by President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill at their recent conference at Casablanca.

Referring to "our war plans for 1943," Byrnes declared that "they contemplate, within a measurable period of time, the invasion of Europe, one of the greatest military operations ever planned in history—a military campaign, which no matter how successfully and brilliantly executed, will involve casualties such as this nation has never before endured."

Many On Long Week

Byrnes pointed out that "many war industries are already working 48 hours or more a week, but the order will compel other industries to go on a minimum 48 hour week wherever feasible. The general adoption of the 48 hour week will enable us to get more work out of our limited labor supply. . . . We shall thereby release manpower for the armed forces, for war industries and for the farms."

The commission's program was summed up in this manner:

1. Employers in 32 critical labor shortage areas will be told not to release any workers between now and March 31, and to stop all recruitment and "indiscriminate hiring at the gate."
2. After March 31, employers will be required to tell the WMC how near they are to the lengthened work week, and if it has not been reached by that time, they will be asked to prepare schedules immediately to set their plants on the required work basis.
3. From these schedules the WMC will determine what plants are going to release employees and how many workers will be free. Then the commission will place them in the labor shortage areas.
4. A procedure will be set up under which an employer will be able to appeal for an exception to the 48-hour week where lack of materials, defective production plans or certain other factors, make full schedules impossible.
5. Cases of non-compliance with the order among the non-war industries will be turned over to the attorney general for appropriate action.

Byrnes, in his radio address declared that pending war plans will require the home front to "adopt for the duration a spartan standard of living and to take patriotic pride in it."

Jack-of-All-Trades, Helicopter Seen By Some as Post-War Flying Flivver

Vought-Sikorsky XR-4 helicopter

By ESTHER VAN WAGONER TUFTY

Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Quietly, the helicopter . . . off-called the "flying flivver" . . . is being seriously talked about here by aviation big-wigs as a boon to post-war transportation. Few know it, but Igor Sikorsky, the designer and guiding force comes frequently to Washington for conferences.

In its cheapness, flexibility of movement and ability to land anywhere (apparently anywhere but atop a tree), the helicopter promises to remove the traffic bottleneck in congested metropolitan areas. "It's said it will revolutionize the travel habits of the average man as much as the Model T Ford did 43 years ago."

Home-to-Mother Quick

So, in the days to come, Mr. John Citizen may open his garage door in the morning, roll out his private helicopter and arrive at his office in six or seven minutes! Mrs. John Citizen, in an air jitney, may go home to mother before she has changed her mind.

The helicopter is priced right for the average family's pocketbook. Costing no more than a medium-priced car, it can do things no circus flivver could ever do! It's easier to fly than the old family Ford . . . and easier to keep operating. Even Sister Susie, who never did have any mechanical sense, can be trusted with its simple mechanism.

Simple as the helicopter is, it can accomplish complex feats. It can go at the rate of one mile an hour or 85 miles an hour. It can stop abruptly. It can land on anything that has a radius of 25 feet . . . (rooftops, backyards or streets). Move forward or backward or sideways . . . my word, it can even spin around in a circle. It can even pause in midair outside a bedroom window and, with the help of a gangplank, my lady can start on a shopping tour.

"Buggy" Resembles Bug

All of these factors make it a good, everyday, useful "buggy" and it looks like a bug—a dissected one, for there are no wings and the propeller revolves on top like two giant misplaced feelers.

It could be the fisherman's joy, for he can, by using its rubber pontoons, set it down gently on a choice pool. A line can be dropped out of the plane window and presto—a perch! And the danger of the fish warren is much less with such a fast get-away make possible!

A mechanic's delight, it does away with hurried motorists who pester him while he fixes a flat. The helicopter motorist can pull up to a station, park suspended in the air, and the mechanic can take off the entire wheel. Instead of waiting, the motorist can "oom over" to see the ninth inning at the ball park and call for the wheel in half an hour, when it can be replaced in a like fashion.

The possibilities of the helicopter as a "flying bus" are being investigated by Manfred Burleigh, president of the Great Lakes Greyhound Lines, who came to Washington recently for that purpose. He envisions a bus system in the air that will solve our congested traffic problems. As the first step, he wants to get the release of two of these wonder-planes and try them out on a commercial bus line route in the crowded Detroit area. Then when the war is over, the experimental period will be over, too. As Burleigh sees it, "That will be the beginning of a great airline . . . on a cheap basis . . . to meet the transportation and employment needs of the post-war world."

Opposition Expected

But everyone isn't as enthusiastic about this invention as Sikorsky, Burleigh and others. (Although it is known that Germany is working hard to find the secret to Sikorsky's successful product so they can put it into use.) Much opposition has come and more is anticipated from certain railroad men and automobile manufacturers who see in the helicopter . . . a menacing competitor.

Just as the railroad men fought cheap bus and water travel years ago, it is anticipated they will fight this new step in the progress of American transportation. As one helicopter enthusiast said, "I know 72 railroad men on the Army payroll, and motor highwaymen are few, if any."

ISLAND VICTORY PAVES WAY FOR YANKEE ACTION

Munda Seen As Next Target For American Air And Sea Forces

Japanese troops caught in the final trap were lacking, it was believed that between 2,500 and 3,500 Japs were involved.

It was a bitter defeat for the Nipponese who landed on the island last Summer and constructed an airfield from which they planned assaults on Allied shipping lanes to Australia, and on American bases in the New Hebrides, New Caledonia and the Fiji Islands.

Costly Defeat

It was also a costly defeat. During the landing of American marines, and in the subsequent fruitless efforts to recapture Guadalcanal and strategic Henderson field the Japanese lost at least 30,000 men, 1,100 planes and 72 warships, transports and supply vessels.

While the marines made the first landings and put the situation in hand, the army finished the job. Marines were evacuated from Guadalcanal for a well-earned rest several weeks ago and doughboys under command of Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch took over.

The Japanese evacuation had been under way for some time. Senior officers were among the first to go—by submarine and others by small surface ships which slipped ashore in darkness. Tokyo's announcement of the Guadalcanal defeat grossly understated Japanese losses, claiming that casualties in the Solomons and New Guinea campaigns were 16,734, and aircraft losses were 139.

New Defeat Looms

Another Japanese defeat was in the making in New Guinea as Allied jungle fighters in the Wau-Mubo district south of Lae drew closer to the enemy base which is the next objective in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's campaign. More than 100 Japanese dead were counted following the latest battle.

Allied bombers pounded Lae from the air and also raided Kendari in the Celebes.

Russian heavy artillery, moved up from Stalingrad, blasted German positions in Rostov as Soviet armies closed in on the Caucasus gateway. Stiffened German resistance slowed but could not halt Red army advances.

The Russians plunged ahead on the whole 500-mile front from Orel to Novorossik threatening the key defense points of Kharkov and Stalingrad after breaching the enemy line at Kursk and Belgorod.

Lieut. Gen. Vasily Chuikov, whose army forced the axis to capitulate at Stalingrad, said the enemy lost 500,000 men in killed and captured in that ill-fated campaign.

Moscow Confident

Promise of future heavier blows at the retreating enemy was contained in a Moscow dispatch to Reuter's which said a fresh army of 1,500,000 ski troops was ready to take the field.

German nervousness was betrayed by reports that the Bulgarian Black Sea coast is being hurriedly fortified against possible attack. Berlin also announced that civilians at Brest and other French coastal towns will be evacuated because of continuing Allied air raids.

Another Berlin report said the RAF was over western Germany during the night, but gave no details. Up to an early hour this morning the air ministry did not confirm this report.

In North Africa the French repulsed a German tank assault, but elsewhere action was on a light scale. RAF and American aircraft kept up their attacks on the Tunisian coastal area held by the axis.

Action flared again on the border of China's Yunnan Province adjoining Burma as the Japanese made a major effort to breach Chinese lines. The attack failed and the Japanese lost 1,000 men.

COUNTRY CLUB SETS PLANS FOR SUMMER SEASON

Plans for modified operation of Pickaway Country club during the 1943 season were outlined Wednesday by Tom O. Gilliland, club president, following a meeting of club trustees.

Mr. Gilliland said the club will open May 1 and, following a strict budget set up by him and the trustees, will continue to operate through the Summer barring any unforeseen developments.

Plans now are to center all club activity at the Nineteenth Hole, caddy house equipment being removed there, lockers for golfers being made available in the locker room of the club house. "Course management will be in charge of a person yet unnamed. The designated employee will also handle Nineteenth Hole activities, caddies, club house and all other facilities of the club. The house committee, headed by Dr. G. D. Phillips, is seeking a married couple to reside in the club house during the Summer.

Harry W. Heffner was named chairman of a membership-finance committee, this committee to go to work immediately to line up members for the season. Charles T. Gilmore was named chairman of the greens committee, and Tom Brunner of the tennis committee.

Trustees approved appointment of Elmon E. Richards, Harold Limbach, Harold O. Grant and Norbert Cochran as members of the board, representing non-stockholders. Appointment of advisory trustees was approved at the annual stockholders' meeting.

The club officers have not yet worked out a program for keeping the greens and golf course in proper condition.

Trustees met in offices of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company.

HENRY DEARTH DIES AT HOME IN CHILLICOTHE

Henry A. Dearth, Sr., 50, husband of the former Lulu Harrison of Circleville, died Wednesday at 3:10 a. m. at his home, 364 South Hickory street, Chillicothe. Mr. Dearth, who had been ill one year, was a paper finisher for the Mead Corporation.

CIANO MAY BE POINTED TOWARD MOVE FOR PEACE

American Sources Believe Cabinet Shakeup Had Hidden Motive

role in the final peace settlement, especially in Europe, and it is believed that Mussolini is preparing to take advantage of that possibility.

Italy In Jam

American officials are inclined to view Italy now as being in much the same position as Finland, eager to get out of the war, but unable to do so because of the German hold on the country.

However, the comparison between Italy and Finland ends there, because the sympathy which the American government still feels for the Finnish people does not apply to Italy.

The view prevails in American quarters that Italy is now more of a liability than an asset to Germany, and for that reason, if for no other, there is no disposition to consider anything short of unconditional surrender from that country.

Thus, officials say Mussolini is going to be badly disappointed if he harbors the hope that the United States will deal with Ciano or Russo.

U. S. To Be Aloof

In the first place, the American government has no use for either one of those gentlemen. The state department considers Ciano an unscrupulous grafter and political racketeer. Roscoe is not regarded as any friend of this country.

Officials recall that on one occasion in November, 1935, Russo received a verbal lashing from Secretary of State Cordell Hull when he protested as an "unfriendly act" the American government's appeal to manufacturers not to sell war supplies to Italy or Ethiopia during the Italian invasion of that African kingdom.

JOHN B. DUFFY FUNERAL TO BE THURSDAY AT 10

GIVING GUNS TO GANGSTERS MAY COST LIFE TERM

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 10—On his admission he supplied the guns used by seven members of the Roger Touhy gang in making their escape from Stateville penitentiary October 9, Casimir Darlak, brother of one of the gangsters, faced a possible 199 prison term today.

Darlak confessed his part in the escape to State's Attorney James E. Burke of Will county yesterday, and a new indictment will be sought naming him in the charge. Two of the fugitives were slain by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents when the gang was rounded up in Chicago.

Touhy, Basil Banghart, William Stewart and Matthew Nelson have been indicted for helping Edward Darlak escape. All face a sentence of 199 years in addition to the other terms they were serving at the time of their escape.

Casimir Darlak was arrested 10 days ago in the east and was brought back to Joliet.

"I took two pistols to Stateville penitentiary one night last August," he told Burke. "I had made arrangement to meet a man, Percy Campbell, a Negro trusty, who would get the pistols into the prison."

"I got the pistols, which were taped together, and threw them back of a hedge fence where Campbell picked them up later," Campbell escaped later and still is at large.

AIR BASE WINS PRAISE AS ONE OF ARMY'S BEST

Public Relations Officer Tells Jaycees About Pilot's Opinions

INSURANCE EXPLAINED

Lieutenant Urges Service Men To Investigate Federal Benefits

Lockbourne army air base was praised as one of the best and most important in the nation Tuesday evening when Lieutenant Joseph Schroeder, public relations officer for the base, appeared at a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Pickaway Arms. About 50 Jaycees and guests attended the meeting.

Lieutenant Schroeder said that every pilot landing at Lockbourne was high in his praise of the splendid concrete runways. This is considered a tribute to many Circleville and Pickaway county men who helped in construction of the gigantic runways which are strong enough to handle any plane operating at the present time.

Complete Training

"Pilots leaving Lockbourne following conclusion of their training are ready for immediate service on the war fronts," Lieutenant Schroeder told his listeners. He declared that Lockbourne is now a base for advanced training, no flier being assigned there until he has completed his basic work at other stations throughout the country.

Lockbourne is now a four-motored school, the Jaycees were told, Flying Fortresses (B-17s) being used in training the airmen assigned there. There are other planes at the base, Schroeder said, but most work is being centered on handling B-17s.

Fortresses Active

"Fortresses will be over your city and county in ever-growing numbers this summer," Lieutenant Schroeder told the Jaycees, "the air corps stepping up training of these already well-trained airmen."

The public relations officer was accompanied by Lieutenant John U. Nagel, who explained insurance, dependency measures and other little known phases of the War Department's program to help men in service and the people they have left at home. His talk covered several interesting subjects.

At conclusion of Lieutenant Nagel's talk, the Jaycees enjoyed splendid motion pictures of "Mr. Blabbermouth," the man who hears every rumor and expands it as he "blows off" to every person he sees. "Mr. Blabbermouth" in this movie talked too much to his barber, so much in fact that he ended with a shaving brush full of lather pushed in his mouth.

Another interesting film showed training of mountain parachute troops, all phases of their work being covered from the time they are put on skis for the first time until they catapult from their transport plane to take a pre-designated position. Training of ski-troops requires six weeks.

The projector was handled by Sergeant Carl Howard of Lockbourne.

The meeting, a highly successful one, was conducted by James E. Yost, president of the Junior Chamber. Guests were introduced by H. Sheldon Mader, with Boyd Stout, secretary, reading his report.

County Clocks To Be Set Back Hour Feb. 21

Circleville district residents are preparing to turn back their clocks one hour to "slow time" beginning Sunday, February 21. Approval of the time change program was voted as an emergency Tuesday afternoon by the Ohio senate.

The measure is expected to be put on the desk of Governor John W. Bricker during the next day or two, but he is not expected to sign it until next Monday, making the bill law the Sunday following his signing.

That Circleville will go along with the time change was indicated at City Hall where Mayor Ben H. Gordon said the city is certain to abide by the legislature's decision.

No Local Decision

Circleville school authorities have not yet reached a decision on their new hour schedule, but it is certain that changes will be made, both in city and county.

The senate completed the legislative undertaking when it voted 23 to 9 for the bill.

The bill originally passed the senate last week by a 22 to 8 vote, but only after the original emergency clause was stricken when it drew 20 votes, with ten cast against it. An emergency clause to make a bill immediately operative requires a two-thirds vote, or 22 votes in the senate.

In the house, however, where sentiment for a time-change was much stronger, the emergency clause was re-inserted, and after passage by a smashing four to one vote the measure was sent back to the senate for concurrence in the amendment.

Brief Debate

Debate on the emergency clause in the senate lasted less than ten minutes, with four time-change proponents taking the floor to urge its passage in very brief addresses. Sen. Liggett (R-Belle Center) then demanded the roll-call vote.

The time change admittedly will cause confusion as it will result in a dual time standard for Ohio. All clocks governing purely intra-state activities will be changed back, but those governing interstate commerce or federal functions will remain on War Time.

One of the greatest focal points of confusion is expected to be the schedule of trains. Unless the Interstate Commerce Commission intervenes to place Ohio in the Central Time zone, the trains must continue to operate throughout Ohio on Eastern War Time.

FEWER ACCIDENTS

Thirty-nine fewer accidents were recorded in 1942 among maintenance employees of Division Six of the state highway department than in the preceding year, J. Perry Schumaker of Delaware, chief of the highway division which also includes Circleville, said that the division had 25 fewer minor accidents and 14 less medical cases.

Are these Yank troops tough? Well, let any doubtful civilian just try a wrestling match with one of 'em.

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

Frequently the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten... likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, or other illness often reduces one's blood strength.

At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its proper functions and balance. Undigested food places a tax on the system... insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.

Now you may overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of digestive complaints, sour stomach, bloating, undigested food, loss of appetite, poor complexion, jerky nerves, weakness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed to promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach and to build-up blood strength when deficient.

AIR BASE WINS PRAISE AS ONE OF ARMY'S BEST

Public Relations Officer Tells Jaycees About Pilot's Opinions

INSURANCE EXPLAINED

Lieutenant Urges Service Men To Investigate Federal Benefits

Lockbourne army air base was praised as one of the best and most important in the nation Tuesday evening when Lieutenant Joseph Schroeder, public relations officer for the base, appeared at a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Pickaway Arms. About 50 Jaycees and guests attended the meeting.

Lieutenant Schroeder said that every pilot landing at Lockbourne was high in his praise of the splendid concrete runways. This is considered a tribute to many Circleville and Pickaway county men who helped in construction of the gigantic runways which are strong enough to handle any plane operating at the present time.

Complete Training

"Pilots leaving Lockbourne following conclusion of their training are ready for immediate service on the war fronts," Lieutenant Schroeder told his listeners. He declared that Lockbourne is now a base for advanced training, no flier being assigned there until he has completed his basic work at other stations throughout the country.

Lockbourne is now a four-motored school, the Jaycees were told, Flying Fortresses (B-17s) being used in training the airmen assigned there. There are other planes at the base, Schroeder said, but most work is being centered on handling B-17s.

Fortresses Active

"Fortresses will be over your city and county in evergrowing numbers this Summer," Lieutenant Schroeder told the Jaycees, "the air corps stepping up training of these already well-trained airmen."

The public relations officer was accompanied by Lieutenant John U. Nagel, who explained insurance, dependency measures and other little known phases of the War Department's program to help men in service and the people they have left at home. His talk covered several interesting subjects.

At conclusion of Lieutenant Nagel's talk, the Jaycees enjoyed splendid motion pictures of "Mr. Blabbermouth," the man who hears every rumor and expands it as he "blows off" to every person he sees. "Mr. Blabbermouth" in this movie talked too much to his barber, so much in fact that he ended with a shaving brush full of lather pushed in his mouth.

Another interesting film showed training of mountain parachute troops, all phases of their work being covered from the time they are put on skis for the first time until they catapult from their transport plane to take a pre-designated position. Training of ski-troops requires six weeks.

The projector was handled by Sergeant Carl Howard of Lockbourne.

The meeting, a highly successful one, was conducted by James E. Yost, president of the Junior Chamber. Guests were introduced by H. Sheldon Mader, with Boyd Stout, secretary, reading his report.

Call for Coca-Cola by its full name or by its friendly abbreviation, Coke.

It's the real thing.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time.

In these days of wartime shortages, there may not be as much Coca-Cola as before. But still enough for many pauses that refresh. It's wise to buy ahead for the home refrigerator.

THE TWELVE ISLANDS

THE NAZIS says that the Spring offensive of the United States will be against Crete and the islands of the Dodecanese, in the eastern Mediterranean. This is a reminder that Italy still has a little territory outside of her own natural boundaries. Albania is one possession, the only one added by Mussolini. Then there is the Dodecanese, a name meaning "twelve islands," though there are really 14, and applying to a group not far from Asia Minor. Of these Rhodes is the best known. Though Greek in language and national affiliation, they were seized by Italy from Turkey in 1910 and, despite several promises to the contrary, have never been handed over to Greece.

Any post-war readjustment by boundaries according to race and language would assign the Dodecanese to Greece. To Italy they are chiefly valuable as stepping-stones to the Turkish mainland, which at one time Italy eyed as a possible future conquest. The revival of Turkey, begun by Mustapha Kemal and continued after his death, has made this a fanciful dream. It is proverbially unwise to take the bear's skin before killing the bear; and Turkey will take more killing than Italy can accomplish. Further, so low has Italy fallen through Mussolini's blundering that the prospects are now that she will lose whatever outside territory she still possesses. The Dodecanese will be the first to go.

THE MOVING GROUNDHOG

HERE is a true story of a groundhog—documented with the name of Mrs. Hugh Glasgow of Geneva, N. Y.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Glasgow happened to be around when an excavating shovel picked up a groundhog. It was hibernating, in its long Winter's sleep, and did not wake up when transferred to Mrs. Glasgow's nice warm cellar. There it stayed, sleeping nicely, till Groundhog Day. Then it woke up, looked around, found itself in unfamiliar surroundings and fled for the outer air. Nobody knows whether it saw its shadow or not, but what it did was to seek the nearest hillside and hole up again for its last nap before Spring breakfast.

Mrs. Glasgow testifies to the facts, but isn't sure of the interpretation. She wishes she did know whether or not it means six more weeks of Winter.

We don't know either. Ask us about Easter time.

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam's approximate 3,000,000 of wartime federal bureaucrats could be thinned out by about 1,000,000, according to Representative John M. Robison of Kentucky, not only to the tune of an enormous financial saving but as a preliminary to an enormous improvement in the service.

The Kentucky lawyer expressed himself in a preliminary to a congressional investigation, just starting under the chairmanship of Representative Robert Ramspeck of Georgia, into governmental employment methods.

The quiz has not yet progressed far enough to be very indicative yet. Nevertheless the initial testimony decidedly is down the alley that he refers to.

The regular departmental workers are not the ones criticized. The special agencies' staffs are the folk under fire. Even the rank-and-file of these staff members are not so much blamed as their superiors are. The underlings, it is asserted, are pitchforked wholesale into jobs that do not mean anything to their bosses themselves. Having nothing definite to do, they simply loaf at a multiplicity of desks and clutter up thousands of offices detrimentally to the activities of the few who actually have individual ideas of the duties they would like to be attending to competently. At least, that is the story the Ramspeck committee is listening to from its witnesses.

Congressman Robison tells of a farmer in his home district, from whom the government needed certain crop information.

Quizzed by 16!

It was easy to get, says Robison, and a single researcher could have obtained it, in the course of a few minutes' chat with the agriculturist. Yet in the course of one day, relates the Kentucky legislator, that farmer was visited, in succession, by 16 different sleuths, asking the same questions.

It delayed the farmer. Furthermore, his 16 separate inquiries turned in 16 conflicting reports concerning conclusions drawn from their various chats with him.

As to questionnaires, everybody is becoming familiar with them, as mid-March tax collection time approaches. You, dear reader, will have been getting your hatch of interrogations recently. That they foreshadow monetary ruination to you does not require stating. But, in addition to that, they're a Chinese puzzle each.

You must be an expert accountant to understand one of them. And expert accountants run into money. They disagree likewise. Little peewees, like me, can't afford them. And then, if you hire one, he differs from others.

The fact is that treasury authorities differ as to interpretations. To tell the truth, the administration did not want the Ramspeck ventilation.

It reveals the bughouse character of executive management. Maybe it isn't MIS-management, but there is NO management about it, and it is impossible for it to claim that there is.

The bureau cannot be classified except alphabetically. A-D-FCC-OWI-FWA-GAO-I-A-D-E-I. That's just a handful of them.

Who's Boss of What?

Nobody knows whom their respective heads are. They do not know among themselves. Telling them apart is impossible.

The WPB and the OPA notably are on the par.

WPB is alleged to be notably overmanned.

If, as per the Ramspeck committee's informants, they were just so infernally expensive, it would not be so serious, but the proposition is that it is positively deleterious to our effort.

It's an investigation designed to show, not crookedness, but fat-headedness, in the administration. A few profiteers may be side-swiped, but they're not numerous.

In general, it has been an unusually respectable war, financially. There should not be any subsequent monetary scandals. It does not look like it now, anyway.

Some "war brokers" will be caught, maybe, but not numerously.

NAVY CAUGHT OFF GUARD

WASHINGTON — Vice Admiral Fred Horne, assistant chief of naval operations, has been holding some quiet black-board talks with the House and Senate Naval Affairs Committees, and these talks have been a real step toward Congressional-Executive cooperation. Horne, by his frankness and willingness to admit Navy mistakes, made a better impression than any other Navy man appearing before Congress.

Horne was high in his praise of our naval officers and men, but frankly admitted that the Navy was caught off guard in the Savo Island battle of August 9, just after the Marines landed at Guadalcanal. He said there was no excuse for this defeat; that a board of inquiry was now investigating; and there probably would be heavy penalties for the guilty.

Horne said that apparently the captains of the cruisers sunk had not ordered their men to battle stations. He also revealed that an Australian admiral that night was in command of the "screening force" of cruisers and destroyers supposed to be protecting the main task force.

Horne admitted that the Australian officer and Admiral Kelly Turner, chief of the Allied task force, knew a Jap scouting fleet was in the vicinity, but didn't figure it would risk an attack. The commanders calculated that the earliest possible time the Japs could reach Savo Island was after daybreak next morning.

Therefore the Australian admiral left his flagship, the Canberra, and spent the night on Admiral Turner's flagship 25 miles from the scene of battle. No orders were given meanwhile to Australian and American officers under Turner and the Australian, and they were caught completely off base when the Japs struck at about 1:50 a. m.

JAPS CORNERED IN ALEUTIANS

On the more optimistic side, Admiral Horne reported the United States had sunk a great many Jap cruisers, and that despite the defeat at Savo Island we had been definitely superior in operational strategy.

In the Aleutians the Japs are so completely bottled up, Horne reported, that we probably could wipe them out at any time. Our submarine patrol has been especially effective in these waters, with the result that the Japs are desperately hard up for food, aviation gasoline and other supplies.

Horne admitted, under questioning by Congressmen, that the Australians had not sent their troops to New Guinea to the extent requested by Gen. MacArthur. He also reported that cooperation between Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Halsey was excellent.

MacArthur, he said, had been sent to Australia at the request of the Australians, though the Army wanted to keep him in command at Bataan.

Horne also made no attempt to mini-

New Post-Concussional War Injury Symptoms

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE CAN hardly in this country even dimly realize the mental and emotional beating that the people who live in England and continental Europe and the men of the armed forces are taking in various war activities.

We had a term in the last war for a condition called "shell shock," which applied to soldiers who had been under fire and heavy artillery barrage and who, while they were not wounded in any way, had a mental and emotional upset which was very difficult to treat.

This has been extended into the present conflict: thousands more of such cases are found and the whole civilian population is liable to exposure to these conditions. The English no longer use the term "shell shock," but try to resolve the condition into a more accurate and descriptive name. They do use the term "post-concussional syndrome."

A case history
A case in point is that of a private in the English army, 29 years old, who survived several bombings without any symptoms. He was lying in an outpost when a shell dropped within several yards of him and exploded. He remained in a coma for three hours and when he recovered consciousness, he was walking in a daze, crying like a baby and shaking all over. He had no injury, but continued to suffer from headaches, loss of memory and he trembled on hearing an aircraft and kept thinking of a friend of his who had been killed earlier in the war.

The methods of psychiatry have improved very markedly in the period of time between the end of the last war and the present one and these cases have been treated with considerable success by these new psychiatric methods. It is well to remember this because a great many cases are started, not by exposure to severe bombings or shellings, but by talking to people who, when they hear that the individual is nervous about shells, tell of a case of a person who had the "shakes" and loss of memory and who "never got over it."

Mostly Curable

"Never got over it" is a comparatively rare condition, especially under modern methods of psychiatric examination. The modern specialist in the nerves and mind takes these men and analyzes them on the basis of what their previous record was. Very frequently the causes of the breakdown are found in the past history before the individual entered the army—poor school work, dislike of army routine in the past, family troubles, disagreements and so forth. When all these are carefully analyzed, it is often seen that an individual with post-concussional symptoms was fated and doomed to have them even on very slight provocation.

About half of the combatants who are treated are able to return to duty, although there is a considerable proportion of relapse in these. But when they are put on war work which involves less actual exposure to battle conditions, they usually get along well without any recurrences. The war is thus taking toll of many people in strange and unusual ways.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. C. A.: What can one do for a granulated eyelid? Is it incurable or dangerous?

Answer: Granulated eyelid, in most instances, does not constitute a serious condition. There are, however, several kinds of granulated eyelid and I would get up my courage and go to a doctor or an oculist and find out just what kind you have. The probabilities are that the treatment is simple and the cure inevitable.

SYNOPSIS

KAT STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries.
JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake hurries after her while she is on a business trip to California with
DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, who himself had entertained hopes that Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free crowd as Jake.

YESTERDAY: Kay, tired by the round of parties with Jake and the heavy Christmas rush of business at the store, collapses at work. David starts to take her home in a taxi.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

DAVID was terrified. He had no idea what to do with Kay, who had fainted dead away in the taxi. He opened the windows wide, hoping the icy air would revive her.

Fortunately the lights were with them, and they got home in record time. David paid the driver, then gathered Kay up in his arms and carried her into the apartment. She opened her eyes for a second when he moved her, gave him a weak, dazed smile, and shut them again.

Anna blanched when she opened the door. "Oh, Mr. Banning, what is it? An accident? Oh, my poor Miss Kay!" she said in anguish as she led David into Kay's room, turned down the bed, took off Kay's hat and shoes.

"That's fine, Anna. Now get me some brandy and call her doctor. She just fainted, but she seems to be exhausted."

"That's no wonder. I don't see how she's gone on so long." Anna said with tight lips. She left the room, came back presently with a glass and decanter.

"Here's the brandy," she said to David. "I'll give it to her. The doctor will be here in 15 minutes. And if you don't mind waiting in the living room, I'll get Miss Kay to bed."

David was grateful for the efficient way Anna took over. The doctor came, expressed grave concern over Kay's condition.

"She's coming down with the flu, and she's in no state to battle it. She's very tired, run down. I don't want to alarm you unduly, but she will need the best of care and attention."

Anna pleaded with David not to get any trained nurses. "None of them care for her the way I do. I understand her. I've been with Miss Kay since she was born. She hates to have strange people touch her."

The doctor shrugged his shoulders. "We'll try it and see. I would say it is essential that we spare Mrs. Kerr any unnecessary irritation or fretting."

Kay was delirious for several days. On Christmas Eve she and David, a meal they ate all half-heartedly and in a most unfeeling mood. Het had offered to move in and share the nursing with Anna, but Jake wouldn't hear to it.

He was beside Kay's bed day and night. Kay seemed to sense when he was there. If he went away for a few minutes, she became restless. She repeated his name over and over.

"The flu responded well to treatment. But Kay's strength came back very slowly. At the end of January she was still able only to be up for a few hours a day. She'd have dinner on the sofa in front of the fire, talk to Jake until about 9 o'clock, then go back to bed."

"Why don't you go without me?" she asked Jake one night, when he had just refused an invitation to dine with some old friends of hers, the Blakes.

"I wouldn't have any fun without you," he said with one of his sweet, slow smiles.

"Of course you would. You need to get out, see more people. I'd better if I knew you were having a good time."

"You're all the good time I want," he assured her.

But it worried Kay. Jake seemed to have lost interest in everything. He went down to his place every day, but he didn't stay long. He apparently was more dependent on other people than she was. So the next day, after he had gone out, she telephoned Sylvia Blake.

"Have you found an extra man yet?" she asked, "because if you haven't, Jake would love to come."

"Jake's never an extra man," Sylvia said.

"Fine, then he'll be there." She hung up. Maybe this was a foolish step. She hated every minute Jake was out of her sight now. But she felt he needed a shaking up. Soon he might begin getting bored with her.

She rang the bell for Anna. "Please lay out Mr. Kerr's dinner clothes. And I'll be alone for dinner."

Jake came home about 5 o'clock. When he went into his room to look at his mail, he called out, "What's all this about?"

"Sylvia called up. She was desperate, couldn't find another man anywhere. I told her I didn't think you'd mind helping her out to-night," Kay explained, glad that Jake couldn't see her face.

"I'm not a bit crazy about the idea. You'll be lonely," he said, but he didn't sound exactly crestfallen.

"Oh, don't worry about me. A batch of new books came today, and Het sent me a lovely new piece of needlepoint."

"Just this once then." He sounded better already. He began to whistle. Half an hour later he came out of his room, looking heart-breakingly handsome. There was a sparkle in his eye, a lift in his walk. He broke off a white carnation from a huge vase of flowers David had sent Kay. She suddenly felt forlorn and palled, huddled up in a pale pink negligee, hugging the fire.

"This is a pathetic mess," she told herself. "This being an invalid has got to stop. My husband is young and alive and I love him. I've got to be healthy and alive too."

Jake called Anna, asked her to bring them a cocktail. Anna looked reprovingly at Kay. "Dr. Smith said no drinks for you, Miss Kay."

"Oh, be quiet, Anna, and do as Mr. Kerr says," Kay told her. Anna silently left the room.

"One drink can't do you any real harm, can it?" Jake asked.

"No, of course it can't. Anna's just an old scaremonger." It was fun sipping a cocktail again, chatting with Jake. When it was time for him to go she helped him on with his coat, settled his top hat on his blond hair.

"Next time we'll be going together," he whispered as he kissed her good night.

Kay was still awake when he came home at 2 o'clock. She heard him opening the front door with his latch key. The living room rug had a deep pile, so she couldn't hear him at all for a few minutes.

Then she heard him switch on the light in his room, heard the tinkle of ice. He came over to the door that separated their rooms, tripped over something and swore loud and cheerfully. He called her name softly two or three times. She didn't answer.

His shoes made a clatter as they hit the floor. He began to sing. There was a slight creak when he got into bed. Three matches were struck before his cigarette was lit. In a few minutes she could hear him breathing heavily. The slit of light at the foot of his door still showed. She became panicky, picturing the bed clothes on fire.

She got up, quietly opened the door, tiptoed into his room. She put out the cigarette that was smoldering on the carpet. Jake had fallen asleep reading and was propped up against two pillows. She lifted his head, took the pillows away. He hated to sleep on a pillow.

He looked young and happy in his sleep. But those lines by his mouth showed even now when he was relaxed. Lines of discontent, she decided. She kissed his cheek, turned out the light, opened the window. He didn't stir.

She didn't sleep at all the rest of the night.

The next evening David stopped in on his way home from the store. Jake had gone out after this one o'clock breakfast and came in while David was telling Kay an amusing bit of gossip.

Jake sat down on the sofa beside Kay, leaned over and kissed her. "You seem to be doing her good," he said. "She's looking more cheerful than she has for days." Kay had been laughing and there was some color in her cheeks.

"She is looking better," David said. "Her eyes are brighter, but she needs to gain some weight."

"Not at all," Kay retorted, with heat. "And don't sit there looking at me so critically, as though you were judging a dog or a horse."

"That's right, darling. Let him have it," Jake said with a smile. "How would you like to have David stay and keep you company to-night?"

Kay looked up at him in surprise. "Are you going out?"

New Post-Concussional War Injury Symptoms

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE CAN hardly in this country even dimly realize the mental and emotional beating that the people who live in England and continen-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

tal Europe and the men of the armed forces are taking in various war activities.

We had a term in the last war for a condition called "shell shock," which applied to soldiers who had been under fire and heavy artillery barrage and who, while they were not wounded in any way, had a mental and emotional upset which was very difficult to treat.

This has been extended into the present conflict: thousands more of such cases are found and the whole civilian population is liable to exposure to these conditions. The English no longer use the term "shell shock," but try to resolve the condition into a more accurate and descriptive name. They do use the term "post-concussional syndrome."

A Case History

A case in point is that of a private in the English army, 29 years old, who survived several bombings without any symptoms. He was lying in an outpost when a shell dropped within several yards of him and exploded. He remained in a coma for three hours and when he recovered consciousness, he was walking in a wood, crying like a baby and shaking all over. He had no injury, but continued to suffer from headaches, loss of memory and he trembled on hearing an aircraft and kept thinking of a friend of his who had been killed earlier in the war.

The methods of psychiatry have improved very markedly in the period of time between the end of the last war and the present one and these cases have been treated with considerable success by these new psychiatric methods. It is well to remember this because a great many cases are started, not by exposure to severe bombings or shellings, but by talking to people who, when they hear that the individual is nervous about shells, tell of a case of a person who had the "shakes" and loss of memory and who "never got over it."

Mostly Curable

"Never got over it" is a comparatively rare condition, especially under modern methods of psychiatric examination. The modern specialist in the nerves and mind takes these men and analyzes them on the basis of what their previous record was. Very frequently the causes of the breakdown are found in the past history before the individual entered the army—poor school work, dislike of army routine in the past, family troubles, disagreements and so forth. When all these are carefully analyzed, it is often seen that an individual with post-concussional symptoms was fated and doomed to have them even on very slight provocation.

About half of the combatants who are treated are able to return to duty, although there is a considerable proportion of relapse in these. But when they are put on war work which involves less actual exposure to battle conditions, they usually get along well without any recurrences. The war is thus taking toll of many people in strange and unusual ways.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. C. A.: What can one do for a granulated eyelid? Is it incurable or dangerous?

Answer: Granulated eyelid, in most instances, does not constitute a serious condition. There are, however, several kinds of granulated eyelid and I would get up my courage and go to a doctor or an oculist and find out just what a kind you have. The probabilities are that the treatment is simple and the cure inevitable.

For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Dorothy Wightman, Miss Nelle Dowler and Miss Charlotte Ucker of the staff of the Nelsonville public library were in Circleville to inspect Pickaway county's new book truck.

James Dunton, who was associated with the Northwestern Territory celebration, spent a week with his mother, Mrs. O. H. Dunton, South Court street. He was to rejoin the caravan at West Newton, Pa., where boats were being constructed.

Representatives of 12 of Pickaway county's 17 automobile dealers met and organized the Pickaway County Auto Dealers' association with B. F. Harden as president.

10 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Carl Ritz, East High street, was elected president of the Circleville Benevolent association at the annual organization meeting in the city cottage.

Mayor B. T. Hodges appointed Dr. E. S. Shure, Dr. C. C. Watts and Glenn L. Nickerson to the board of health. Mrs. Ralph Long and John Drum were the other members.

Mrs. Gilbert Monroe, Dr. D. H. McNew, Portsmouth, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevenson, Chillicothe, returned home after a few days' visit with Mrs. N. G. Spangler, West High street.

25 YEARS AGO

Colonel C. E. Groce at a meeting of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, appointed S. F. Seacrest, Germain Joseph, H. P. Folson, C. D. Closson and Meeker Terwilliger as a committee to investigate the feasibility of a War Chest in Circleville.

Members of the Ohio Ice Cream Manufacturers' association at their meeting held in Columbus announced that as a sugar conservation measure, they would make no more icees and sherbets during the war.

Robert Young and Allen Thornton, who were detailed from the 166th Regiment Rainbow division to take charge of the officers' horses, sailed from Newport News on January 21 for France.

Where Contentment Lies

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
KAT STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York City, suddenly marries.
JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all offers to turn professional. They are married when Jake hurries after her while she is on a business trip to California with.
DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern who himself had entertained hopes that Kay would marry him. Kay's best friend in the city is.
HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village and is in much the same care-free crowd as Kay.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN
DAVID WAS terrified. He had no idea what to do with Kay, who had fainted dead away in the taxi. He opened the windows wide, hoping the icy air would revive her.

Fortunately the lights were with them, and they got home in record time. David paid the driver, then gathered Kay up in his arms and carried her into the apartment. She opened her eyes for a second when he moved her, gave him a weak, dazed smile, and shut them again.

Anna blanched when she opened the door. "Oh, Mr. Banning, what is it? An accident? Oh, my poor Miss Kay," she said in anguish as she led David into Kay's room, turning down the bed, took off Kay's hat and shoes.

"That's fine, Anna. Now get me some brandy and call her doctor. She just fainted, but she seems to be exhausted."

"That's no wonder. I don't see how she's gone on this long." Anna said with light lips. She left the room, came back presently with a glass and decanter.

"Here's the brandy," she said to David. "I'll give it to her. The doctor will be here in 15 minutes. And if you don't mind waiting in the living room, I'll get Miss Kay to bed."

David was grateful for the efficient way Anna took over. The doctor came, expressed grave concern over Kay's condition.

"She's coming down with the flu, and she's in no state to battle it. She's very tired, run down. I don't want to alarm you unduly, but she will need the best of care and attention."

Anna pleaded with David not to get any trained nurses. "None of them care for her the way I do. I understand her. I've been with Miss Kay since she was born. She hates to have strange people touch her."

The doctor shrugged his shoulders. "We'll try it and see. I would say it is essential that we spare Mrs. Kerr any unnecessary irritation or fretting."

Kay was delicious for several days. On Christmas Eve came up and shared the turkey with Jake and David, a meal they ate half-heartedly and in a most unattractive mood. Het had offered to move in and share the nursing with Anna, but Jake wouldn't hear of it.

He was beside Kay's bed day and night. Kay seemed to sense when he was there. If he went away for a few minutes, she became restless. She repeated his name over and over.

The flu responded well to treatment. But Kay's strength came back very slowly. At the end of January she was still able only to be up for a few hours a day. She'd have dinner on the sofa in front of the fire, talk to Jake until about 9 o'clock, then go back to bed.

"Why don't you go without me?" she asked Jake one night, when he had just refused an invitation to dine with some old friends of hers, the Blakes.

"I wouldn't have any fun without you," he said with one of his sweet, slow smiles.

"Of course you would. You need to get out, see more people. I'd feel better if I knew you were having a good time."

"You're all the good time I want," he assured her.

But it worried Kay. Jake seemed to have lost interest in everything. He went down to his place every day, but he didn't stay long. He apparently was more dependent on other people than she was. So the next day, after he had gone out, she telephoned Sylvia Blake.

"Have you found an extra man yet?" she asked, "because if you haven't, Jake would love to come."

"Jake's never an extra man," Sylvia said.

"Fine, then he'll be there." She hung up. Maybe this was a foolish step. She hated every minute Jake was out of her sight now. But she felt he needed a shaking up. Soon he might begin getting bored with her.

She rang the bell for Anna. "Please lay out Mr. Kerr's dinner clothes. And I'll be alone for dinner."

Jake came home about 5 o'clock. When he went into his room to look at his mail, he called out, "What's all this about?"

"Sylvia called up. She was desperate, couldn't find another man anywhere. I told her I didn't think you'd mind helping her out tonight."

Jake explained, glad that Jake couldn't see her face.

"I'm not a bit crazy about the idea. You'll be lonely," he said, but he didn't sound exactly crestfallen. "Oh, don't worry about me. A batch of new books came today, and Het sent me a lovely new piece of needlepoint."

"Just this once then." He sounded better already. He began to whistle. Half an hour later he came out of his room, looking heart-breakingly handsome. There was a sparkle in his eye, a hint in his smile. He broke off a white carnation from a huge vase of flowers David had sent Kay. She suddenly felt forlorn and paled, huddled up in a pale pink negligee, hugging the fire.

"This is a pathetic mess," she told herself. "This being an invalid has got to stop. My husband is young and alive and I love him. I've got to be healthy and alive too."

Jake called Anna, asked her to bring them a cocktail. Anna looked reprovingly at Kay. "Dr. Smith said no drinks for you, Miss Kay."

"Oh, be quiet, Anna, and do as Mr. Kerr says," Kay told her. Anna silently left the room.

"One drink can't do you any real harm, can it?" Jake asked.

"No, of course it can't. Anna's just an old scaremonger." It was fun sipping a cocktail again, chatting with Jake. When it was time for him to go she helped him on with his coat, settled his top hat on his blond hair.

"Next time we'll be going together," he whispered as he kissed her good night.

Kay was still awake when he came home at 2 o'clock. She heard him opening the front door with his latch key. The living room rug had a deep pile, so she couldn't hear him at all for a few minutes.

Then she heard him switch on the light in his room, heard the tinkle of ice. He came over to the door of her apartment, and she tripped over something and swore loud and cheerfully. He called her name softly two or three times. She didn't answer.

His shoes made a clatter as they hit the floor. He began to sing. There was a slight creak when he got into bed. Three matches were struck before his cigarette was lit. In a few minutes she could hear him breathing heavily. The slat of light at the foot of his door still showed. She became panicky, picturing the bed clothes on fire.

She got up, quietly opened the door, tip-toed into his room. She put out the cigarette that was smoldering on the carpet. Jake had fallen asleep reading and was propped up against two pillows. She lifted his head, took the pillows away. He hated to sleep on a pillow.

He looked young and happy in his sleep. But those lines by his mouth showed even now when he was relaxed. Lines of discontent, she decided. She kissed his cheek, turned out the light, opened the window. He didn't stir.

She didn't sleep at all the rest of the night.

The next evening David stopped in on his way home from the store. Jake had gone out after this one o'clock breakfast and came in while David was telling Kay an amusing bit of gossip.

Jake sat down on the sofa beside Kay, leaned over and kissed her. "You seem to be doing her good," he said. "She's looking more cheerful than she has for days." Kay had been laughing and there was some color in her cheeks.

"She is looking better," David said. "Her eyes are brighter, but she needs to gain some weight."

"Not at all," Kay retorted, with heat. "And don't sit there looking at me so critically, as though you were judging a dog or a horse."

"That's right, darling. Let him have it," Jake said with a smile. "How would you like to have David stay and keep you company tonight?"

Kay looked up at him in surprise. "Are you going out?"

Miss Florence Dunton was re-elected president of the Circleville Benevolent association at its annual organization meeting Tuesday in the city cottage. Mrs. W. T. Uim will serve again as vice president; Mrs. W. W. Robinson, as secretary; and Mrs. Clark Will, as treasurer.

Miss Southward, case worker, gave a comprehensive report of her year's work, saying that 199 families had received help of some kind during the year and that 27 families had been on the milk list at intervals. She mentioned that she had visited 174 homes.

In her report of the January work, she said that the month was just about average in applications for assistance. Donations of used clothing were received from 13 individuals and from the Wesleyan Bible class of the Methodist church. Various garments and other supplies were given to 58 families. The potatoes and canned corn left over from Christmas were distributed to 24 families. Coal and groceries were purchased for one family and five families were on the daily milk list.

Among needs not yet supplied are mattresses, rugs, dishes, a child's bed, cupboard, chairs and clothing, especially for children.

California Wedding

Miss Elaine McQuay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cranston McQuay, New Holland, and Private First Class Howard Garrison, son of Mrs. Ruth Garrison, also of New Holland, were married in a quiet ceremony performed January 26 in Hanford, Cal. The Rev. Leslie Dabritz, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hanford, read the impressive single ring ceremony at 7 p. m. in the church parsonage.

Sergeant and Mrs. Henry Green and Private and Mrs. Norman Brink, friends of the couple who were in Hanford, were the only attendants at the wedding.

A Spring costume suit of light blue wool and blue halo hat with brown veil were worn by the bride for her wedding. Other accessories were of matching brown and her corsage was of pink carnations.

The bride attended Capital University, Columbus, after her graduation from New Holland high school in 1939. She was a member of the capella university choir while a freshman and completed the university business course. She is a member of Kappa Sigma Theta sorority and held a position as an accountant in the Columbus offices of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation before leaving for Cal.

Pfc Garrison attended McClain high school, Greenfield, and New Holland high school. Before entering the army, he was associated with Bryant's restaurant, New Holland. He is now second cook in his army post. During his training period at Lemoore, Cal., the couple will live in Hanford at 129 East Tenth street.

Dr. Morgan, Monday evening, February 15.

The play by famous radio writer, Kay Van Riper, will present a picture of wartime America in which the only doctor in a large farming community voluntarily makes the hard choice between love and service among his home folk and the call to danger with the armed forces in the Jap infested islands of the Pacific.

The story, an exceedingly timely one, also will touch on such current phases of public health as preventive medicine and refugee doctors.

STARTS CAMP TOUR

Martin Block, announcer of the Kay Kyser show and emcee of "Your Hit Parade" and "Make Believe Ballroom" airings, is taking a two and a half weeks' leave of absence from all his programs to do a tour of Army Camps throughout the South. He left Sunday taking along with him over 300 recordings with which to put on "Make Believe Ballroom" sessions for the boys at the various camps. He will visit out-of-the-way camps—those which have seldom been entertained. Block expects to resume his regular air schedule on February 23.

ALL OUT WAR EFFORT

Bob Hawk, "Thanks To The Yanks" quizmaster and wit, is certainly doing plenty on the morale front. Monday night, he emceed the show at the Stage Door Canteen. Tuesday night, he headed a USO unit at the Long Beach Naval Training Station, L. I. Wednesday evening, the comic quizzed entertained at the Officers' Canteen in Manhattan. The following night, it was the Lambs Club, with Hawk tossing quips at 200 Servicemen. Friday—another Canteen appearance. Saturday night, his regular "Thanks To The Yanks" airing via CBS at 7:30 p. m., where he sends from one to three thousand cigarettes to several of the boys in service. Next day, Hawk wound up a busy week by staging two shows at the Newport, R. I., Navy Base. All out—and all in!

KAYE COULDN'T PARLEY

At the N. Y. Strand theatre, where Sammy Kaye and his orchestra are currently appearing, the batonier invited a Fighting French sailor to guest-conduct the band during Kaye's "So You Want To Lead A Band" session. The sailor, it turned out, couldn't speak a word of English. Kaye's high school French didn't help, either. So saxist Marty Oscar came to the rescue and acted as interpreter. Oscar is the son of the owner of the popular French night spot in town, La Vie Parisienne. After the show, Kaye took the Fighting Frenchman to see the bandleader's

Wednesday night program, aired via CBS at 8 p. m. EWT. It was the sailor's first broadcast and he enjoyed it immensely.

SHORT STUFF

A big booking office has offered Billie Rogers, Woody Herman's girl trumpeter, a chance to lead her own band in the Harry James manner. But Billie refused, preferring to remain with Woody. . . . CBS "Comedy Caravan" comic Herb Shriner thinks there's no fuel like the good old fuel. . . . Roy Rogers, who guested on the Rudy Vallee program last week, claims that the yodeling solo, "Haidee, my little lady," which he did on the show, is the fastest yodel in the music books. It certainly sounded that way. . . . The largest prop ever constructed for radio was used on Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences" program last Saturday night (6). A Merry-Go-Round 18 ft. wide, 12 ft. high, weighing 3,000 lbs., and requiring 8 men to move, it took 20 hours to be installed in the NBC studio.

Hitler's alibi is that it wasn't ethical for the Russians to conceal all those guns and troops.

Obligation Ceremony Exemplified by Star

Worthy Matron
In Charge Of Session

An interesting meeting of Circleville Chapter No. 90, Order of the Eastern Star, was conducted Tuesday in Masonic temple with 37 members present. The impressive obligation ceremony was exemplified by Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Mahaffey, Mrs. Cecil Noecker, Mrs. Roy Beaty, Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, Mrs. Pauline Goodchild, Miss Marie Hogan and Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer.

Mrs. Noecker, worthy matron, led the opening ritualistic ceremony and was in charge of the business hour.

Mrs. George Valentine announced a meeting of the Merry-Makers' Sewing Circle for Friday in the Red room, Masonic temple. Games and contest were enjoyed during the social hour in the Red room.

Mrs. Fred Moeller, Mrs. Pearl Page, Mrs. W. C. Morris, Mrs. Irene Newton, Mrs. Edward Schreiner, Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, Mrs. Will Gearhart and Mrs. Harry Moore were responsible for the delightful lunch served at the close of the evening.

Circleville Benevolent Society

Miss Florence Dunton was re-elected president of the Circleville Benevolent association at its annual organization meeting Tuesday in the city cottage. Mrs. W. T. Ulm will serve again as vice president; Mrs. W. W. Robinson, as secretary, and Mrs. Clark Will, as treasurer.

Miss Southward, case worker, gave a comprehensive report of her year's work, saying that 199 families had received help of some kind during the year and that 27 families had been on the milk list at intervals. She mentioned that she had visited 174 homes.

In her report of the January work, she said that the month was just about average in applications for assistance. Donations of used clothing were received from 13 individuals and from the Wesleyan Bible class of the Methodist church. Various garments and other supplies were given to 58 families. The potatoes and canned corn left over from Christmas were distributed to 24 families. Coal and groceries were purchased for one family and five families were on the daily milk list.

California Wedding

Miss Elaine McQuay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cranston McQuay, New Holland, and Private First Class Howard Garrison, son of Mrs. Ruth Garrison, also of New Holland, were married in a quiet ceremony performed January 26 in Hanford, Cal. The Rev. Leslie Dabritz, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hanford, read the impressive single ring ceremony at 7 p. m. in the church parsonage.

Sergeant and Mrs. Henry Green and Private and Mrs. Norman Brink, friends of the couple who reside in Hanford, were the only attendants at the wedding.

A Spring costume suit of light blue wool and blue halo hat with brown veil were worn by the bride for her wedding. Other accessories were of matching brown and her corsage was of pink carnations.

The bride attended Capital university, Columbus, after her graduation from New Holland high school in 1939. She was a member of the capella university choir while a freshman and completed the university business course. She is a member of Kappa Sigma Theta sorority and held a position as an accountant in the Columbus offices of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation before leaving for Cal.

Pfc Garrison attended McClain high school, Greenfield, and New Holland high school. Before entering the army, he was associated with Bryan's restaurant, New Holland. He is now second cook in his army post. During his training period at Lemoore, Cal., the couple will live in Hanford at 129 East Tenth street.

Luther League Banquet

Luther league of Trinity Lutheran church enjoyed a fine banquet Tuesday in the parish house, the Oldster group of a recent league contest serving as hosts for the winning Youngster group. Following the victory supper, an excellent program was presented.

Program numbers included a humorous reading, "Husbands", by Virginia Palm; a shadow box operation, Ned Dresbach, Marion Good and Donald Wolf; a puppet singing act by Marjorie Noff, Gladys Troutman, Vera Zaenglein, Doris Schreiner and Ruth Troutman.

Interesting games and contests appropriate to the Valentine season were enjoyed.

The excellent supper was served by Mary K. Wolfe, chairman, assisted by Ethel Hussey, Mrs. Charles Walters, Mrs. Samuel Cline, Lois Engle, Marjorie Neff,

Matelasse Costume

AS HANDSOME a costume as has come out to greet a new Spring, this matelasse model is magicked of black and white. The skirt is modishly narrow, but it has a good stride width at that; the jacket top of thick, bright white has a double-breasted closing beneath a deep V neckline finished with a notched collar and wide revers.

The jack rose boutonniere with its natural coloring is part of the ensemble. The white buttons are plastic, chunky, and have a carved surface.

served at the close of the meeting.

The next session, March 9, will be at the home of Mrs. Elmon Richards, Washington township.

Jackson P-T. A.

Jackson Parent-Teacher association will meet Monday, February 15, at 8 p. m. in Jackson school auditorium instead of February 22, the regular date.

Sub-Deb Club

Other officers named at the meeting of the Sub-Deb club at the home of Mary Harrison, East Franklin street, are Ora May Sniff, recording secretary; Mary Joan Wolford and Doris Jean Hendricks, sergeants-at-arms, and Betty Jean Sniff, mascot.

Gabel-Rannels

Mr. and Mrs. David Vance Rannels of Laureville are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Cadet Joseph Wayne Gabel of St. Clairsville, Ohio. The single ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold L. Bowman at the manse of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago, Ill., on Christmas eve, December 24, 1942.

Mrs. Gabel is a graduate of Ohio university, Athens, and formerly taught in the Laureville high school.

Monday Club

Roger Vega of Circleville will be guest speaker Monday at the regular meeting of the Monday club in the library trustees' room of Memorial hall. He will be heard in a talk on "Cuba." The Art Division with Miss Sadie Brunner as chairman is responsible for the program.

Morris C. E.

Morris Christian Endeavor society met Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Welch, Pickaway township. James Humphrey was in charge of the meeting.

After interesting games and contests, lunch was served to 40 members and guests.

The March session will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, Pickaway township.

Merry-Makers' Circle

Merry-Makers' Sewing circle of the Order of the Eastern Star will meet Friday at 2 p. m. in the red room, Masonic temple.

Circle 1

Circle 1 of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Charles Fulen, Northridge road, with Mrs. I. W. Kinsey and Mrs. G. D. Phillips assisting in entertaining.

Mrs. Raymond Rader was program chairman and the devotions were led by Mrs. S. G. Rader.

Refreshments were served. The March meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Ida Myers, North Pickaway street.

Daughters of Union Veterans

Daughters of Union Veterans will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Post room, Memorial hall.

Mrs. Robert Gearhart of North Court street and her daughter

New Testaments to all boys of the church in the Armed Forces. Lunch was served to 27 members and visitors by the hospital committee, Mrs. Elmer Stebleton, Mrs. George Dresbach and Mrs. Talmer Wise.

You-Go-I-Go Club

Mrs. Emma Howard of 474 East Main street entertained members of the You-Go-I-Go club at a delightful Valentine party Tuesday at her home on East Main street. Decorations of red and white included Valentines and made the home a gay setting for the affair. Fifteen members and visitors were entertained.

Refreshments in keeping with the Valentine season were served by Mrs. Howard after a pleasant social afternoon.

Ashville Garden Club

Ashville Garden club will meet Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. L. C. Schiff of that community. The program in charge of Mrs. Harold Silbaugh will include several musical numbers and papers on new perennials; fruit and nut trees; growing herbs for home use and the home vegetable garden.

Members are requested to take their new seed and nursery catalogues to the meeting. They are asked also to take clippings or items from newspapers or magazines that will be of interest to Victory Gardeners.

Circle 2

Circle 2 of the W. S. C. S. of the Methodist church was entertained Tuesday by Mrs. Edgar Carmean and Miss Margie Carmean of East Franklin street.

Mrs. George Rignin and Mrs. Edna McGinnis were assisting hostesses. After a short business hour, Miss Carmean as program chairman presented a reading, "I Confess My Faith," Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer; vocal duet, Mrs. Carmean and Miss Carmean; reading, "St. Valentine's Day," Mrs. Harry Griner.

Delicious refreshments were

ELLIOTT NUGENT
Elliott Nugent, now featured on Broadway with Katherine Hepburn in "Without Love," will make a guest appearance on Cavalcade of America in an original radio drama titled "The War Comes To

Dr. Morgan," Monday evening, February 15.

The play by famous radio writer, Kay Van Riper, will present a picture of wartime America in which the only doctor in a large farming community voluntarily makes the hard choice between love and service among his home folk and the call to danger with the armed forces in the Jap infested islands of the Pacific.

The story, an exceedingly timely one, also will touch on such current phases of public health as preventive medicine and refugee doctors.

STARTS CAMP TOUR

Martin Block, announcer of the Kay Kyser show and emcee of "Your Hit Parade" and "Make Believe Ballroom" airings, is taking a two and a half weeks' leave of absence from all his programs to do a tour of Army Camps throughout the South. He left Sunday taking along with him over 300 recordings with which to put on "Make Believe Ballroom" sessions for the boys at the various camps. He will visit out-of-the-way camps—those which have seldom been entertained. Block expects to resume his regular air schedule on February 23.

ALL OUT WAR EFFORT

Bob Hawk, "Thanks To The Yanks" quizmaster and wit, is certainly doing plenty on the morale front. Monday night, he emceed the show at the Stage Door Canteen. Tuesday night, he headed a USO unit at the Long Beach Naval Training Station, L. I. Wednesday evening, the comic quizzer entertained at the Officers' Canteen in Manhattan. The following night, it was the Lambs Club, with Hawk tossing quips at 200 Servicemen. Friday—another Canteen appearance. Saturday night, his regular "Thanks To The Yanks" airing via CBS at 7:30 p. m., where he sends from one to three thousand cigarettes to several of the boys in service. Next day, Hawk wound up a busy week by staging two shows at the Newport, R. I., Navy Base. All out—and all in!

KAYE COULDN'T PARLEY

At the N. Y. Strand theatre, where Sammy Kaye and his orchestra are currently appearing, the batonier invited a Fighting French sailor to guest-conduct the band during Kaye's "So You Want To Lead A Band" session. The sailor, it turned out, couldn't speak a word of English. Kaye's high school French didn't help, either. So saxist Marty Oscar came to the rescue and acted as interpreter. Oscar is the son of the owner of the popular French night spot in town, La Vie Parisienne. After the show, Kaye took the Fighting Frenchman to see the bandleader's

Wednesday night program, aired via CBS at 8 p. m. EWT. It was the sailor's first broadcast and he enjoyed it immensely.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10 — Uncle Mike Jacobs, the boxing game's Mr. Big, will throw the full weight of his power and influence into a plan he has devised for rounding up much-requested boxing equipment for military camps throughout the country, and today is neck-deep in the favorable responses to his benevolent scheme.

As is usual with most of the Jacob ideas, it is gigantic in scope. Before he is through he will have every boxing commissioner in the country involved in his plan, all of the big sportswriters, newspapers and service organizations. His project, which is to hold boxing shows in raising money for the donations of fighting gear, will erect a great network of committees and sub-committees throughout the nation.

Among those he has asked to enlist their services are Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York state boxing commission; Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing association; Commissioner Rains, head of the Pennsylvania board; John Hall, of New Jersey; Tris Speaker, of the Cleveland commission; Jules Covey, of California; Ike Mattes, of Louisiana; Thomas Morgan, of the District of Columbia; Samuel Smith, of Massachusetts; Frank Kosky, of Connecticut; John Hettche, of Michigan; Sheldon Clark, of Illinois and Bob Mitchell, of Maryland.

Green's organization will be pressed into service as a clearing house for the committees outside of New York, and already the N.B.A. head has wired in his approval, as have Phelan, Speaker and Morgan.

Before shoving off for Miami, Jacobs revealed he would start the ball rolling with a boxing show in the garden, part of the proceeds of which will be donated to the fund. Commissioners elsewhere will be asked to get the promoters within their jurisdiction to stage similar shows.

The commanding officers of the various army, navy, marine and coast guard training stations and camps will be asked to submit a list of paraphernalia needed, instead of sending this equipment to individuals, as in the past. The committee designated will then attempt to fill each request.

Jacobs said the "Glove and Bag Fund", as the drive will be known, will receive between $5,000 and $10,000 from the show he contemplates staging in the garden.

Steeler Bill Dudley Wins Pro Toting Title

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—Bill Dudley of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who enlisted in the army air corps two weeks ago, was the 1942 champion ground game of the National Professional football league.

The University of Virginia alumnus, acclaimed as the "rookie of the year" took his place among outstanding ball-carriers of all time by amassing a total of 696 yards in 162 attempts.

Merlyn Condit of Brooklyn, who several times took the lead away from Dudley during the season, wound up second with 647 yards in 129 tries.

The longest gain of the season was turned in by Lloyd Cardwell of Detroit when he broke away for 80 yards against Cleveland November 15. Elmer Hackney of Detroit ran 78 yards against his former teammates, the Steelers, November 8.

One hundred and twenty-one men carried the ball in the 55 league games, compiling a league average of 3.24 yards per attempt against 3.23 in 1941.

The Chicago Bears retained their team championship in rushing, although they were 275 yards short of their winning total in 1941 and averaged only four yards per rush against 4.63 in 1941.

Pittsburgh finished second in the team competition with an average of 3.77 yards and Detroit, the team that did not win a game, was third averaging 3.654 yards. Washington, the team that defeated the Bears in the play-off, wound up in fourth spot in the ball carrying department with 3.652.

PHIL CLUB NOW HELD BY LOOP; BUYER SOUGHT

Gerry Nugent Gives Up His Holdings; Frick Takes Charge

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—After considerable suffering through more than a decade, baseball finally has found relief for its big headache—the Philadelphia Phillies, who now are the temporary property of the National league.

That a buyer of this shabbiest of franchises already has been lined up was made evident late yesterday when League President Ford Frick announced his circuit's acquisition of virtually all stock in the club and added:

"We will reveal the new owners as soon as negotiations have been completed."

Speculation centered around a syndicate supposed to be made up of New York and Philadelphia business men, but Frick refused to discuss this or any of the other rumors, including one to the effect that the club would be moved to Baltimore or elsewhere.

Straightening out what has come to be known as the "Philadelphia problem" has been under consideration for at least a couple of years and finally was accomplished in part at least in a two-day session of the league directorate composed of Horace Stoneham, New York; Phil E. Wrigley, Chicago; William Benswanger, Pittsburgh, and Bob Quinn, Boston.

According to reliable estimates the Phils were in hock $292,000 until they recently sold Pitcher Rube Melton to the Brooklyn Dodgers and First Baseman Nick Etten to the New York Yankees for an estimated $40,000.

Debt Assumed

Thus when the league took over the Phils yesterday, they also assumed responsibility for $292,000 of indebtedness.

Of this, however, $132,000 was owed to the league itself with little chance of getting it under the previous setup which had produced five finishes in seventh place and six in the cellar during the 11 years Gerry Nugent had headed the club.

The latter definitely is out as president of the Phils and has relinquished his 2,600 shares of stock for an unannounced sum. Most of the remainder of 5,000 shares has been acquired, and the one thing left apparently is to get the new owners in the saddle for what will be a rocky ride until a major league team can be built up. When Nugent maintained his custom of getting rid of any good ball players on the roster by selling Melton and Etten he left approximately one major leaguer with the club for next season. This unique party is Outfielder Dan Litwiler. He seems doomed to stay there now as the nucleus for what the league hopes will be a turn for the better in the Philadelphia problem.

The rebuilding is going to be a slow and arduous thing with talent now growing scarcer by the minute, but the change in ownership comes at a time when attendance undoubtedly will be up due to the rush of service men and the public toward any kind of entertainment and relaxation. Bolstered gate receipts would help to reestablish the club after a drought that had grown steadily worse since they won their first and last pennant in 1915.

Moreover, the competition in the majors will be more even next season because of that same scarcity of talent and the Phils conceivably will be able to make some kind of showing and perhaps even take the play away from the Athletics, who are living on past laurels and scarcely more able now than their ignoble fellow-townsmen.

The problems that will confront the new owners are centered around getting players to win ball games and getting gate receipts to pay salaries. While they ponder this they will be reminded often of the stars who have worn Phillie uniforms only to wind up elsewhere under the system employed in the past—Dolph Camilli, Bucky Walters, Curt Davis, Kirby Higbe, Dick Bartell, Claude Passeau, Chuck Klein, Joe Bowman, and enough others to win 10 pennants.

PHIL CLUB NOW HELD BY LOOP; BUYER SOUGHT

Gerry Nugent Gives Up His Holdings; Frick Takes Charge

By Lawton Carver
 NEW YORK, Feb. 10—After considerable suffering through more than a decade, baseball finally has found relief for its big headache—the Philadelphia Phillies, who now are the temporary property of the National league.

That a buyer of this shabbiest of franchises already has been lined up was made evident late yesterday when League President Ford Frick announced his circuit's acquisition of virtually all stock in the club and added:

"We will reveal the new owners as soon as negotiations have been completed."

Speculation centered around a syndicate supposed to be made up of New York and Philadelphia business men, but Frick refused to discuss this or any of the other rumors, including one to the effect that the club would be moved to Baltimore or elsewhere.

Straightening out what has come to be known as the "Philadelphia problem" has been under consideration for at least a couple of years and finally was accomplished in part at least in a two-day session of the league directorate composed of Horace Stoneham, New York; Phil E. Wrigley, Chicago; William Benswanger, Pittsburgh, and Bob Quinn, Boston.

According to reliable estimates the Phils were in hock $292,000 until they recently sold Pitcher Rube Melton to the Brooklyn Dodgers and First Baseman Nick Etten to the New York Yankees for an estimated $40,000.

Debt Assumed
 Thus when the league took over the Phils yesterday, they also assumed responsibility for $252,000 of indebtedness.

Of this, however, $132,000 was owed to the league itself with little chance of getting it under the previous setup which had produced five finishes in seventh place and six in the cellar during the 11 years Gerry Nugent had headed the club.

The latter definitely is out as president of the Phils and has relinquished his 2,600 shares of stock for an unannounced sum. Most of the remainder of 5,000 shares has been acquired, and the one thing left apparently is to get the new owners in the saddle for what will be a rocky ride until a major league team can be built up.

When Nugent maintained his custom of getting rid of any good ball players on the roster by selling Melton and Etten he left approximately one major leaguer with the club for next season. This unique party is Outfielder Dan Litwhiler. He seems doomed to stay there now as the nucleus for what the league hopes will be a turn for the better in the Philadelphia problem.

The rebuilding is going to be a slow and arduous thing with talent now growing scarcer by the minute, but the change in ownership comes at a time when attendance undoubtedly will be up due to the rush of service men and the public toward any kind of entertainment and relaxation. Bolstered gate receipts would help to reestablish the club after a drought that had grown steadily worse since they won their first and last pennant in 1915.

Moreover, the competition in the majors will be more even next season because of that same scarcity of talent and the Phils conceivably will be able to make some kind of showing and perhaps even take the play away from the Athletics, who are living on past laurels and scarcely more able now than their ignoble fellow-townsmen.

The problems that will confront the new owners are centered around getting players to win ball games and getting gate receipts to pay salaries. While they ponder this they will be reminded often of the stars who have worn Phillie uniforms only to wind up elsewhere under the system employed in the past—Dolph Camilli, Bucky Walters, Curt Davis, Kirby Higbe, Dick Bartell, Claude Passeau, Chuck Klein, Joe Bowman, and enough others to win 10 pennants.

RUTH COMING TO CITY

Chairman Of Food Division Of OPA To Be Speaker At Retail Session

Two meetings, both of which are of utmost importance in conducting point rationing registration and operation, were set up Tuesday afternoon at a session in the offices of the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office.

Point rationing, through which canned fruits and vegetables will be distributed, begins March 1 with other goods to be included at later dates.

First meeting will be Tuesday, February 16, at 4 p. m. in the new offices of the rationing board in the county garage building, West High street, with all school administrators of Pickaway county and Circleville to attend. The school men will be in charge of providing registration facilities, sufficient number of trained registrants, and will also be charged with care of War Ration book No. 2.

Educators Notified

Letters signed by George D. McDowell, county school superintendent and chairman of the War Price and Rationing office, were being sent Wednesday to each of the school heads, including superintendents of high schools and principals of elementary buildings. A notice was also mailed to J. Wray Henry, Circleville high school principal, who is expected soon to outline plans for Circleville's registration.

Second meeting will be Thursday, February 25, with all merchants of the city and county who will be handling rationed items being urged to attend with as many of their store employees as possible so that rationing system can be explained.

Ruth To Speak

Karl Ruth, chairman of the food department of the OPA, will be in Circleville to address the retailers on various phases of the system. Ruth is expected to bring some movies which will explain the point system in simple form.

Importance of all stores being represented was pointed out by J. Donald Mason, chairman of the food panel of the county office. He urges that every store have at least one person in its employ who is versed in all angles of the point rationing plan so that persons wishing to buy rationed foods will be able to receive necessary information in the various stores.

Registration Dates

Registration will be conducted in all Pickaway county schools beginning Tuesday, February 23, and continuing through Friday, February 26. All schools will begin registration at 1 p. m. each day and will continue until 6 o'clock each day except Wednesday when registration will be conducted until 9:30 p. m. for persons unable to appear in the daytime. So far hours for the Circleville registration have not been set.

In the county area persons whose last names begin with the letters A through E will register Tuesday; F through K on Wednesday; L through S on Thursday; T through X on Friday. This schedule, while not mandatory, is favored by the rationing office.

Any person may register for the entire family, and the person registering is urged to take all the family's sugar and coffee ration books along. No Ration Book No. 2 will be issued to any person who is without Ration Book No. 1.

At Tuesday's meeting, held in rationing offices, were Lynn Bradner, OPA field representative who will address the school site administrators at the meeting next Tuesday; Mr. McDowell, ration board chairman; Glen Geib, community service chairman; J. O. Eagleson, ration board clerk, and Mr. Mason, food panel chief.

Congress lately seems to be acting as if it really had something to do about governing the country.

HEALTHIER GIVES WARNING ABOUT LEFT-OVER USE

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, issued a warning Wednesday to Circleville and Pickaway county housewives who keep left over food from one meal to the next or for the next day to exercise extreme care in protecting this food.

He said that it is highly possible that many of the complaints of intestinal trouble might be traced to food of this type which oftentimes is left standing on the table for several hours before being put into refrigerators.

"Housewives should be careful to always put food immediately in the icebox when the meal is finished. If left out for two hours, the bacteria will accumulate and possibly spoil it. This may be the cause of so many complaints about indigestion," Dr. Blackburn declared.

Refrigerators should be kept at 40 degrees Fahrenheit, the healthier said. He also pointed out that extra care should be given in maintaining refrigerators since, at least for the duration, they are practically impossible to get repaired.

"I am not discouraging food rationing or housewives conserving food by saving left-overs," he asserted, "but emphasis should be placed on seeing that foods do not spoil through carelessness."

TENNESSEE MOUNTAINEER

Secretary Hull, who bitterly resents criticism of his cooperation with North African Vichyites, has held some bare-knuckled press conferences recently. In one of them he was particularly resentful of Isidor F. Stone, correspondent of Marshall Field's newspaper PM.

One of Hull's aides had tipped him off that Stone's original name was "Feinstein," and that he had adopted Stone as his pen name. (He is listed in Who's Who as I. F. Stone, with "Isidor Feinstein" in parentheses). So when Stone asked Hull a question regarding North Africa, the Secretary of State fired back:

"What is your name?"

"Stone."

"I thought it was. You have some other name, too, have you not?"

"That is my name, Mr. Secretary."

Then continued a heated discussion on North Africa, after which Stone said: "Would you care for a statement on my name?"

"I am not interested in your name."

"I think you stepped out of bounds, Mr. Secretary."

"I was trying to find out to whom I was talking."

"I said my name was Stone. You made a further remark that I think was uncalled for."

What most people at the press conference didn't know however, was that Secretary Hull's wife also changed her name—from Witz to Whitney.

Note: When PM's publisher Marshall Field was suggested by the White House as U. S. Ambassador to London, Secretary Hull turned thumbs down in no uncertain terms.

SCHOOL BOY HEROES

American school children who collected scrap in the School Salvage Program were invited to name Liberty Ships for the outstanding figures of their states. Their choices are significant.

New York children nominated Lou Gehrig above either Theodore Roosevelt or DeWitt Clinton. The statesmen trailed the famous ball player in the vote, so a Liberty Ship was named Lou Gehrig.

Florida children chose Colin P. Kelly, Jr., killed December 10, 1941, when he sank the Japanese battleship Haruna. Kansas kids chose Amelia Earhart, and Minnesota's favorite was "Mayo Brothers."

Other selections: Idaho, William E. Borah; Indiana, Thomas R. Marshall; Mississippi, Pat Harrison; Missouri, Champ Clark; Nevada, Key Pittman; Texas, Big Foot Wallace, a famous Texas Ranger.

The prize winning scrap collector in New Mexico was Connie Mack. Officials of WPA's Conservation Division assumed Connie was a girl's name, and wrote "her" a letter of congratulation, inviting

LAYAWAY SHOES NOT LAYAWAYS AFTER THURSDAY

Circleville and Pickaway county persons who have bought shoes on the layaway plan have until the close of business Thursday to obtain the shoes without surrendering a ration stamp. Announcement of the ruling was made Wednesday by the Pickaway county War Price and Ration office following receipt of information from the state OPA.

Members of armed services are exempt from the rationing provision which permits purchase of one pair of shoes every four months with Ration Stamp No. 17 in Book No. 1. Men in service must present certificates signed by their commanding officers.

Circleville shoe dealers said Wednesday that Tuesday's business was near normal following the Monday "freeze" of sales.

Shoe men will not have to surrender ration stamps at present to wholesalers, but will owe currency for all purchases and must keep stamps and certificates collected up to date. OPA warned that no shoe man should sell a pair of shoes without receiving stamp No. 17.

But Connie was a boy, and he replied in verse:

"I gathered scrap to whip the Jap, And make a better world.

And in my scrap to whip the Jap, They thought I was a girl.

But when our scrap does reach the Jap, We'll have them on the run.

So thank you, Mr. Roosevelt, I had a lot of fun."

CARE URGED IN SENDING MAIL TO SERVICE MEN

Care in addressing mail sent to men in Uncle Sam's naval forces is stressed in information received this week by Postmaster A. Hulse Hays from the Navy Department. Care is also urged in addressing mail to men in other branches of service so that delay and loss of mail can be prevented.

When members of the navy, coast guard or marine corps are overseas mail should be addressed to the fleet postoffice.

For instance mail to men in the three branches of naval service overseas should be in care of Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, or whatever port it may be, instead of care of postmaster, San Francisco, as formerly.

When a member of the forces is assigned to a port station his mail should go, for instance, to "San Diego, Cal." and not to the Fleet Postoffice.

Some misunderstanding exists concerning the rate of postage chargeable on air mail addressed to members of the naval forces.

When mail is addressed to a

Fleet Postmaster it is presumed that the mail will go overseas, so the local postmaster charges six cents for each half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. If the air mail is addressed to naval personnel within the United States it is subject to postage at the rate of six cents an ounce or fraction thereof.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, issued a warning Wednesday to Circleville and Pickaway county housewives who keep left over food from one meal to the next or for the next day to exercise extreme care in protecting this food.

He said that it is highly possible that many of the complaints of intestinal trouble might be traced to food of this type which oftentimes is left standing on the table for several hours before being put into refrigerators.

"Housewives should be careful to always put food immediately in the icebox when the meal is finished. If left out for two hours, the bacteria will accumulate and possibly spoil it. This may be the cause of so many complaints about indigestion," Dr. Blackburn declared.

Refrigerators should be kept at 40 degrees Fahrenheit, the healthier said. He also pointed out that extra care should be given in maintaining refrigerators since, at least for the duration, they are practically impossible to get repaired.

"I am not discouraging food rationing or housewives conserving food by saving left-overs," he asserted, "but emphasis should be placed on seeing that foods do not spoil through carelessness."

MEMBERS OF the Royal Canadian Navy's mine disposal squad, who are on constant alert for floating mines that carry sudden death for any ship aloft, are Canada's unsung and unheralded heroes. The group is under the direction of Lieut. George Rundle (above), shown using a blinker sign to warn nearby boats to clear away from a danger area, where the mines are spotted and exploded by machine gun fire. The sound is an offshoot of England's famous mine and air bomb disposal organizations.

PAROLES GRANTED TWO AFTER CORN THEFT TERMS

Joe Von Boyd and Arthur F. Perone, convicted of stealing corn from Homer Cromley, Harrison township, will be released from the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield on April 1 on parole. Announcement of their parole was received by County Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt.

Von Boyd and Perone, residents of the Middleport-Pomeroy district, were caught during investigation of the corn theft. Also arrested was Chester A. Walker, who is now in the Ohio penitentiary serving time for his part in the theft.

TENNESSEE MOUNTAINEER

Secretary Hull, who bitterly resents criticism of his cooperation with North African Vichyites, has held some bare-knuckled press conferences recently. In one of them he was particularly resentful of Isidor F. Stone, correspondent of Marshall Field's newspaper PM.

One of Hull's aides had tipped him off that Stone's original name was "Feinstein," and that he had adopted Stone as his pen name. (He is listed in Who's Who as I. F. Stone, with "Isidor Feinstein" in parentheses). So when Stone asked Hull a question regarding North Africa, the Secretary of State fired back:

"What is your name?"

"Stone."

"I thought it was. You have some other name, too, have you not?"

"That is my name, Mr. Secretary."

Then continued a heated discussion on North Africa, after which Stone said: "Would you care for a statement on my name?"

"I am not interested in your name."

"I think you stepped out of bounds, Mr. Secretary."

"I was trying to find out to whom I was talking."

"I said my name was Stone. You made a further remark that I think was uncalled for."

What most people at the press conference didn't know however, was that Secretary Hull's wife also changed her name—from Witz to Whitney.

Note: When PM's publisher Marshall Field was suggested by the White House as U. S. Ambassador to London, Secretary Hull turned thumbs down in no uncertain terms.

SCHOOL BOY HEROES

American school children who collected scrap in the School Salvage Program were invited to name Liberty Ships for the outstanding figures of their states. Their choices are significant.

New York children nominated Lou Gehrig above either Theodore Roosevelt or DeWitt Clinton. The statesmen trailed the famous ball player in the vote, so a Liberty Ship was named Lou Gehrig.

Florida children chose Colin P. Kelly, Jr., killed December 10, 1941, when he sank the Japanese battleship Haruna. Kansas kids chose Amelia Earhart, and Minnesota's favorite was "Mayo Brothers".

Other selections: Idaho, William E. Borah; Indiana, Thomas R. Marshall; Mississippi, Pat Harrison; Missouri, Champ Clark; Nevada, Key Pittman; Texas, Big Foot Wallace, a famous Texas Ranger.

The prize winning scrap collector in New Mexico was Connie Mack. Officials of WPB's Conservation Division assumed Connie was a girl's name, and wrote "her" a letter of congratulation, inviting

LAYAWAY SHOES NOT LAYAWAYS AFTER THURSDAY

Circleville and Pickaway county persons who have bought shoes on the layaway plan have until the close of business Thursday to obtain the shoes without surrendering a ration stamp. Announcement of the ruling was made Wednesday by the Pickaway county War Price and Ration office following receipt of information from the state OPA.

Members of armed services are exempt from the rationing provision which permits purchase of one pair of shoes every four months with Ration Stamp No. 17 in Book No. 1. Men in service must present certificates signed by their commanding officers.

Circleville shoe dealers said Wednesday that Tuesday's business was near normal following the Monday "freeze" of sales.

Shoe men will not have to surrender ration stamps at present to wholesalers, but will owe currency for all purchases and must keep stamps and certificates collected up to date. OPA warned that no shoe man should sell a pair of shoes without receiving stamp No. 17.

"her" to officiate in the christening of a Liberty Ship.

But Connie was a boy, and he replied in verse:

"I gathered scrap to whip the Jap, And make a better world. And in my scrap to whip the Jap, They thought I was a girl. But when our scrap does reach the Jap, We'll have them on the run. So thank you, Mr. Roosevelt, I had a lot of fun."

CARE URGED IN SENDING MAIL TO SERVICE MEN

Care in addressing mail sent to men in Uncle Sam's naval forces is stressed in information received this week by Postmaster A. Hulse Hays from the Navy Department. Care is also urged in addressing mail to men in other branches of service so that delay and loss of mail can be prevented.

When members of the navy, coast guard or marine corps are overseas mail should be addressed to the fleet postoffice.

For instance mail to men in the three branches of naval service overseas should be in care of Fleet Postoffice, San Francisco, or whatever port it may be, instead of care of postmaster, San Francisco, as formerly.

When a member of the forces is assigned to a port station his mail should go, for instance, to "San Diego, Cal." and not to the Fleet Postoffice.

Some misunderstanding exists concerning the rate of postage chargeable on air mail addressed to members of the naval forces. When mail is addressed to a Fleet Postmaster it is presumed that the mail will go overseas, so the local postmaster charges six cents for each half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. If the air mail is addressed to naval personnel within the United States it is subject to postage at the rate of six cents an ounce or fraction thereof.
